DEATH CALLS JOHN G. CARLISLE

Former Secretary of the Treasury Passes Away in New York.

NEW YORK, JULY 31.—Jonh G. Carlisle, former secretary of the treasury under President Cleveland, who has been critically ill for the past two days, died at his apartments in New York at 10:50 to-night of heart failure, accompanied by oedema of the lungs.

John Griffin Carlisle was born in Newton county, Ky., on September 5, 1835. He was educated in the public schools, later studied law and was admitted to the bar. Always a consistent Democrat and interested in public affairs as a young man, he rose from the Kentucky House of Representatives to the Senate, served as lieutenant governor and finally graduated into national affairs.

From 1887 to 1890 he was a member of the National House, and from 1883 to 1889 was Speaker of the House. He resigned to fill the unexpired term of James M. Beck in the United States Senate from which he again resigned in 1893 to become secretary of the treasury under President Grover Cleveland.

Public Notice to Parents.

A certain class of would be "smart" young sons of Emporium parents, ranging from twelve to about eighteen years of age, have been making disturbances during and after Sabbath evening services for some of the congregations of the town.

At one service, recently, they quietly congregated in the entrance to the church, and in the midst of the discourse ran, stamping their feet, like a lot of livery horses with the evident purpose of disturbing the services.

At another service, they waited outside and as the congregation was retiring from the services, one of the hoodlums used a squirt gun full of muddy water and destroyed a fine new dress worn by one of the congregation.

At another place, complaint comes of this same class using the floor for a spittoon for tobacco spit and the corner of the church seats for a depository for cigarette stumps.

The names of all the parties are known, and we wish to give a note of warning to parents to take charge of these "condidates for trouble," or the strong arm of the law will certainly deal with them.

Some of the parents have already been notified that their children are among the offenders and declare that "just as sure as their boys get into trouble" they will have to suffer the penalty, as they will not help them in the least. A word to the wise is sufficient, and it is to be hoped that the "otherwise" will take warning and not have to suffer the result of a farther demonstration of their "ignorance of the requirements of common decency."

The law on disturbing a religious meetings is quite severe. Boys, be manly; don't be hair brained nusiances.

Store Sold.

Yesterday the deal was closed for the purchase of the grocery store and meat market of Mr. Edward Hughes, by Messrs. Robert Clark and Walter Morrison. The gentlemen took possession this (Thursday) morning. Mr. Hughes will retire from the mercantile business, as his health is not the best. He has not decided just what he will do for the present. The new proprietors are both hustlers and will make the business boom. The PRESS wishes them success.

County Convention of Sunday Schools.

The convention of the Sunday schools of Cameron county will be held in Emporium, Tuesday and Wednesday and Wednesday, Aug. 23 and 24. It is expected that Mrs. Baldwin and Mr. Eldridge, who were in attendance last yeao will again be present. On Sunday evening preceding, there will be a union rally service at which time all the churches in Emporium will join. This service as well as the convention will be held in the Methodist Episcopal church.

Austin Mill.

The air is full of reports relative to moving the Austin mill to Liberty, Clermont and the heart of the new Goodyear lumbering operations. Why not locate at Emporium, gentlemen, where you would have railroad facilities.

Will Open September 6.

Westbrook Academy will begin its 29th year September 6.

Keystone State Still Solid.

The optimistic view taken by Chairman Walton, of the Republican State Committee, concerning the prospect of the party in the coming campaign and the result of the election in Pennsylvania in November next, is fully justified by all the facts and the existing conditions, rightly declares the Philadelphia Evening Star.

For some years past it has been customary immediately after the Republican State Convention had placed its candidates in the field for the Chairman of the State Committee to call upon the Chairmen of the various County Committees to have canvasses made of their respective localities, and send preliminary reports to headquarters showing the actual political conditions as they exist, together with suggestions as to points at which the party lines may need stengthening, factional difficulties smoothed out, and any other means that should be adopted for starting in on the campaign in a well-ordered manner.

These reports have been received from nearly all of the sixty-seven counties of the State, and in none of them is the slightest cause for apprehension on the part of the Republicans shown. On the other hand. the Chairmen of the various County Committees state that the conditions are better than they have ever been before, and the reports indicate that the Republican Party of the old Keystone Commonweaith is lined up in force, ready to score an old-fashioned victory at the November polling.

When it is taken into consideration that the ticket named by the State Convention at Harrisburg on June 22, is made up of strong and sturdy stalwarts, of men whose political and personal standing are of the hignest and that these candidates. who are well known and properly appreciated not only in the communities in which they live, but throughout the entire State, there is no reason for surprise at the fact that the party voters are enthusiastic.

Chairman Walton was afforded opportunity to come into contact with some of the enthsiasm when he went to Pittsburg to be on hand for the notification of Gubernatorial nominee Tener and his associates on the ticket, and he correctly sized it up when he said :

"There is reason for general congratulations over the enthusiasm evinced at the notification of the State candidates of the Republican Party and the large number of active Republicans from every section of the State in attendance at the ceremonies.

"From personal contact with some of the best informed men in the State, I am safe in predicting that there will be an unprecedently large vote polled for the Republican State ticket this fall.

"The party is harmonious and the candidates are men who will appeal to the voters of every class. Mr. Tener has made for himself a platform such as any business man with patriotism and public spirit would favor, and upon every hand it is manifest that the people have confidence in his sincerity and ability to do what he proposes."

To put the situation in a nutshell, the Republicans of Pennsylvania have a splendid State ticket for the coming campaign, and they propose to line up and support it in vigorous fashion to the end that it shall be triumphantly successful.

Death of Former Emporium Boy.

From the Smethport Democrat of July 28, 1910, we note the death of Chas. B. Goodrich, a former Emporium boy, who will be remembered by many as the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Goodrich: "Word was received in Smethort Wednesday morning of the death of Charles B. Goodrich, which occurred at his home in Rochester, N. Y., Tuesday night. We understand that Mr. Goodrich has been in poor health during the past two years, but it was not genrally known in this borough that his condition was serious, and the annoucement of his death was the first intimation that his friends had of the critical nature of his ailment, and his death was a shock to his relatives and friends. Mr. Goodrich was well known to the older residents of Smethport, where he resided for a number of years. The deceased was in his 48th year, and is survived by his widow and the following sisters, Mesdames O. T. Chase, James McGuier and Miss Lulu Goodrich, of Smethport, Mrs. Frank Rowlee, of Punxsutawney, and Mrs. Sherry Rightmyer, of Port Jervis, N. Y. The Democrat extends its sincere sympathy to the stricken relatives.

The funeral will be held in Rochester to-morrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

CRIPPEN AND GIRL ARE CAUGHT

WIRELESS HUNT ENDS

Scotland Yard Sleuth Identifies Pair on Montrose at Fathers Point, Quebec.

QUEBEC, QUE., JULY 31 —"Crippen, I want you," said Inspector Dew, of of Scotland Yard to a man on the deck of the steamer Montrose at Father's Point to-day. The man recoiled, a deathly pallor spread over his face, his breath came short and fast and he tried to speak, but his throat only gurgled incoherently. Then:

"Thank God, the suspense is over, and I am glad."

Thus ended the world's most dramatic criminal hunt—the wireless pursuit of Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen of London, England, and his typist, Miss Ethel Clare Laneve. They fled from London on July 9 when the police took up the search for the missing "Belle Elmore," Dr. Crippon's wife.

And the credit for their capture is due to Capt. Kendall and a steward of the steamer Montrose whose sharp eyes penetrated the disguise of the pair who booked possage as "The Rev. John Robinson and son," with Miss Leneve dressed as a boy.

GIRL BREAKS DOWN.

Miss Loneve collapsed in her state room when the police arrested her. Crippen, was broken in spirit, but mentally relieved by the relaxed tension. The young woman, garbed in boy's clothes, sobbed hysterically.

They were guarded closely as the Montrose continued her voyage from Father's Point in Quebec, and during the 150-mile trip were allowed to see each other. Miss Leneve recovered her composure rapidly and Crippen was almost cheerful as the liner plowed through the waters.

The identification of the long sought fugitives on board the fog-shrouded steamer, by the English detectives, who had raced across the Atlantic ahead of the Montrose, marked the close of one of the most sensational flights in recent criminal annals. Accompanied by two Canadian officers, Inspector Dew boarded the Montrose at 8:30 o'clock, this morning and 15 minutes later both man and girl were locked in their state rooms.

CHARGE IS MURDER.

After brief delay, the Montrose continued her 160-mile journey up the river toward Quebec where jail awaited the pair. Crippen is charged with the murder of an unknown woman, believed to have been his actress wife. The girl is held as an accessory. In charge of Inspector Dew they will be taken back to England for trial on the Royal line steamer Royal George, leaving Quebec on Thursday next.

Seldom has there been a scene surrounding the pursuit of a criminal so pregnant with dramatic features as that enacted off Fathers Point this morning, Inspector Dew spent a sleepless night at the Marconi operator's side, communicating through the fog, with the liner that bore the man and woman he sought.

The man had lied to him in London by fleeing the city with the mystery of Belle Elmore's disappearance unsolved and a strong personal feeling entered into the case, accentuating the detective's desire to carry out the task assigned to him by Scotland Yard.

Public Address.

Mrs. Adda Boileau Parsels, of Philadelphia, Pa., will give an address on the street, at the corner of Broad and Main street, Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the interest of civic reform Mrs. Parsels is one of the best of Pennsylvania's women speakers. Remember the hour. Cordial invitation to all.

Qualified Assistant.

Mr. C. Harold Seger, son of Postmaster and Mrs. Charles Seger, has received the necessary papers, qualifying him to act as assistant postmaster during the absence of his father. We hope the appointment will hold good, as Harold is an alright young man and is very popular with all. He is "a chip off the old block," always ready to please and to render any assistance to the patrons of the office.

Lawn Social.

The Sunday School Class of Miss Lena Evans will conduct a lawn social at the Methodist Episcopal Church in the evening of August 9th. Ice cream and cake will be served. Help a good cause and attend this social.

J. B. Meisel Sells His Business.

J. B. Meisel, who has successfully conducted the confectionery and ice cream parlors, next door to the post office, has disposed of his business to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seger, who have taken possession of this popular store. Mr. Meisel was compelled to retire owing to poor health and hopes to take a long rest. During their business career in Emporium both Mr. and Mrs. Meisel having been untiring in their efforts to please the public, thereby building up a large trade. Their successors, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seger, are both popular young people and shall be untiring in their zeal to maintain the popularity of this estabishment. They will continue the high character and reputation of the store by keeping only the choicest of confections, fruits and creams, especially the celebrated I. X. L. ice cream, having the exclusive agency for the latter in Emporium. Orders are solicited for every variety of flavors, as well as ices and sherbets. Call and see them.

The New Rector.

Rev. M. L. Tate and family, the new Rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, arrived in Emporium last Friday and entered upon the discharge of his duties, delivering two able sermons last Sunday morning and evening, to good sized congregations. Extensive repairs having been completed, except the heating system, in the Rectory, the Rev. and his family are now getting settled in their new home. We believe Rev. Tate will after getting acquainted with the people, be a careful, energetic and faithful Rector. We hope all will extend to him the hand of good-fellowship.

Why?

If a Protective Tariff is responsible for high prices, what is accountable for the increase in England, which has no Protective Tariff. The London Graphic has been looking the matter up and finds that in 1909 Free-Trade England paid $36,000,000 more for four articles of food than the same products cost in 1908. These four commodities were wheat, bacon, eggs and mutton, and the Graphic particularizes the advance in each case. What's the answer? There will be more from that class of shallow thinkers who have a parrot-like facility for putting every thing up to the Tariff.—Troy Times.

Well Earned Vacation.

Postmaster Chas. Seger, accompanied by his excellent wife left yesterday on a ten day vacation, taking the popular St. Lawrence, Quebec and Montreal trip. They expect to be absent ten days Mr. Seger has been closely confined for a long time and richly deserves a rest and a little recreation. Hope he may return feeling completely rested and ready to answer to any call of his patrons or Uncle Sam.

A few minutes before leaving, Mr. Seger changed his route, deciding to take steamer from Quebec direct to New York city.

Taking Vacation.

Fred J. Keim, Jr., manager of the Emporium Drug Company's store, departed on Wednesday for a trip which includes Buffalo, Rochester and the St. Lawrence River. Mr. Keim will be absent about one month. During his absence the store will be conductrd by Mr. Earl MacAbee, of Oil City, Pa., formerly assistant manager of the Central Drug Store at St. Marys. Mr. MacAbee is a very pleasant gentleman and is a competent druggist.

A Word to the Wise.

The state through its normal schools offers unusal advantages to young men and women. The Clarion State Normal School with its present equipment has no superior. It opens the doors of opportunity by giving the finest educational advantages at a very low cost. The entire year's expense including board, room rent, light, heat and laundry is only $151. Write for illustrated catalog to J. George Becht, Principal, Clarion, Pa.

Church Repaired.

The lecture room and the Sunday-school room of the First Baptist church has been newly papered, which makes the church rooms appear very light and pretty.

Ice Cream Social.

An ice cream and cake social will be held at the home of Miss Vina Murray, Sixth street, Saturday evening, Aug. 6th. Everybody come.

An Old Miltonian Here.

Mrs. Mary Shadman, relict of the late Samuel Shadman a veteran of the Mexican and Civil Wars, now residing at Emporium, Pa., is visiting among relatives and old friends in Milton and and vicinity. Her husband, who will be remembered by our older citizens, resided in Milton at the time of the Mexican war and recruited and drilled a company in this place which was sent to the front for active service. Mr. Shadman served through the war with distinction participating in seven of the hardest fought battles, and when peace was declared he returned to Milton where he was tenndered a brilliont receptien by our cititizens in honor of his services and loyal devotion to country. He also served an enlistment during the war of the Rebrllion. He was considered a musician of rare ability, having been leader of the old Milton Band for a number of years.—Miltonian, Milton, Pa.

Base Ball Notes.

Last Saturday afternoon, the Keystone Nationals again crossed bats with the Athletics at Keystone Park. The game resulted in the score of nine to one in favor of the Nationals. Although a little one-sided was a good one. Mr. Frank McCloskey and Mr. Lawrence Fisk acted as umpires during the game. The members of the Keystone Nationals, while they have only played a few games together, put up a remarkably good game and are on a fair road to success. The Athletics, also a home team, are all good players and with practice will become a strong aggregation. Emporium should have enough base ball, with two excellent teams in the field.

Changes at Tannery.

Messrs. T. A. and W. A. Flynn, who have been managing the tannery at this place, since the first of the year, have resigned their positions and have returned to Allegany, N. Y. Mr. T. A. Flynn has purchased a large interest in the Kenley tannery at Olean, N. Y., where he, with the assistance of Mr. W. A. Flynn, will conduct the same. Both gentlemen have made many friends in Emporium during the few months they have lived here and we regret to see them leave and the best wishes of all go with them in the new enterprise. Mr. J. H. Herbaugh, of Olean, has been appointed to fill the vacancy in the tannery at this place.

The Messrs. Flynn will keep in touch with their Emporium friends, by reading the PRESS each week.

Society Events.

BRIDGE PARTY.

Last Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Fred Arn Johnson entertained a number of lady friends in honor of her sister, Miss Ida Moffitt, of Carlisle, Pa., the event being a very pleasant occasion. Those ladies in attendance were:

Mesdames E. D. Armstrong, Thad. Moore, William H. Howard, Geo. P. Jones, Leon Felt, Guy Felt, Chas. Seger, Thos. H. Norris, Geo. Taggart, H. H. Mullin, John D. Logan, E. E. Forbes, Fred Seger, Frank Shives, Geo. Dyke, Robt. K. Mickey, J. S. Wiley, and Misses Minnie Bargelt, Settie Wiley and Flossie Taggart.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

A number of lady friends of Mrs. J. D. Logan, surprised that popular lady last Friday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Guy Felt, East Fourth street, the occasion being the "16th and then some" anniversary of her birth. Those present were Mesdames Jasper Harris, E. H. Hughes, Leon Felt, D. R. Branson, M. B. Judd, S. E. Felt. Of course it was a pleasant afternoon and all greatly enjoyed the pleasant occasion, to say nothing of the dainty refreshments.

Pleasant Auto Ride.

Last Thursday, Mr. E. J. Smith took Mrs. Mead Floyd and her guests, also Joe and Robert Kaye, in an auto ride to Olean and return, in Hon. Josiah Howard's touring car. They enjoyed the ride very much.

A School of Merit.

Young Men's Republican Club.

All young Republicans are requested to meet at Republican Headquarters. this (Friday) evening, for the purpose of re-organizing the League Club. Let every young man who believes in the principles of the Republican Party attend. "Old Boys" can attend, also, if they wish and will be welcomed. The State League of Republican Clubs meets next month at Pottsville and we should send a full delegation. Come!

Getting Settled.

Hon. G. W. Huntley and his pleasant daughter, Miss Nellie, have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Williams of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Chas. L. Garrison of Pittsburg—the latter ladies being daughters and sister—at their North Broad street residence this week. They expect to have their new home in apple pie order within a short time.

The Lock Haven State Normal School has had gratifying success, both as a Training School for teachers and as a preparatory school for such students as desire to go to college. Its home life is particularly attractive to its students and patrons. Probably no other feature has contributed so much to its success. Parents realize that their children are well taken care of, both morally and educationally. Reference is made to this fact because the burning question with most parents is chiefly bearing upon the advantages any school offers in the way of safe guarding and developing the characters of its pupils. The splendid patronage that this ideally located school now has is the best assurance of its worth as an institution of learning. It issues a beautiful catalog which will be sent free to any one writing for it. Rooms are now being reserved for the fall term beginning September 6th.

A Good Show.

Frank A Robbins' circus, which exhibited here Aug. 2nd, gave excellent satisfaction and was well patronized. It was one of the best ever and we did not hear one unfavorable criticism. We are pleased to recommend them to the public as a circus that does more than they advertise and strives to please. They are all to the good.

Hustling Representative.

J. H. Hughes, press representative of Robbins' circus was a welcome PRESS visitor on Tuesday. Mr. H. is fully up with the craft, being a practical printer and a son of the foreman of D. Appleton Art Publishing Co., of New York.

LABOR JOURNAL ALIVE TO THE REAL SITUATION.

Commenting on Passage of Postal Savings Bank Bill, Assertion Made That Democratic Party Cannot Be Trusted.

Newspaper readers are familiar with the bitter attacks made upon William H. Taft during his campaign for the presidency in the name of practically all of the large labor organizations. Hence the following clipping from the current issue of the Western Laborer of Omaha, the oldest labor paper in the west, is especially interesting. It is displayed in leaded black face type on the first page, covering two columns, of which the following is the opening:

"AT LAST! AT LAST!

"With all our heart we congratulate President Taft and the Republican administration on the passage of the postal savings bank law. We consider it the most needed and most beneficial legislation of our time. Now the poorest, most humble, most ignorant and superstitious human beings in the country can bank his or her savings and rest assured in the thought that it is safe. That is a blessing. We don't care anything about the squabbling of the banks and politicians over the alleged 'dangerous faults' of this law. The United States, for the first time in its history, has a place for the poorer people to deposit their money where it will be absolutely safe. The people who will deposit their money in the postal banks will never know and never care about the scrap for the funds after it leaves their hands. The Democratic party lined up against this law and it will harm that party immensely. The postal savings bank law comes home closer to the big crowd of American citizens, men and women, than any legislation in recent years, and the Democratic party was against it. Shame on the Democratic party. It can explain and explain and be damned. It tried to defeat the postal savings bank law. The Democratic party cannot be trusted nationally."

New Party Talk.

It is ridiculous to believe that Theodore Roosevelt would lend his support to a new party arising out of the Republican ranks or of any other political organization, for that matter. He is a Republican first, last and for all time. Although bound by no political affiliations at the present moment, it is unreasonable to assume that the former president would desert the party that was his making, and he is certainly not going to become a part of any organization born of Republican dissensions. Despite internal troubles the Republican party is still in the ascendancy, and were it not, it is still believed that Col. Roosevelt would be more likely to lend it his rejuvenating power than to desert it. New parties of late years have not been successful in the United States. The Democratic party has tried twice and with distinct failure both times. Hearst tried it with the more radical wing of Democracy, and in 1896 conservative forces of the Democrats attempted to raise a new party on a gold standard platform in order to defeat Bryan. The foolishness of both endeavors was quickly proven. In all likelihood any new radical political organization made from the rib of Republicanism, as it were, would fail. The new party talk is not seriously taken, and to involve Roosevelt with it is nonsensical.—New Haven Palladium.

Producing Sugar at Home.

The London Times prints an article on sugar beet experiments in Great Britain, showing that sugar beet flourishes, and that there is nothing to prevent the British people from producing all the sugar they consume, excepting the lack of a protective tariff to start the industry. This is an extract from the article:

"It is surely absurd that this country should be importing all the sugar it consumes, to the value of more than $100,000,000 a year, when nearly the whole of this, we believe, could be produced at home."

No better contribution to the revival of English rural life could be made than legislation to encourage the production of sugar in that country. If the friends of a tariff gain as much at the next election as they did at the last one such a change will be brought about. But the United States ought to do very much better in the same direction. This is no good reason why this country should pay foreign nations from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 annually for raw sugar when it can be just as well produced at home.

If We Must Take the Dose.

As usual the possibility of Democratic success at the coming fall elections is being discounted by manufacturers and business men generally. A slump is already apparent in various branches of trade, with curtailment of products consequent upon a decreased demand. The belief that "tip-up" legislation to disturb the business world is the idea of the Democrats, does not assure the country of continued good times. If we must take the nauseous dose, of which most of us have an unpleasant recollection, let it come now, so that those who want a change may have their fill of it before the next presidential election.—Newton (N. J.) Register.

What the country wants at the present time is not more tariff revision but tariff stability.—Pittsburg Press.

ASKS ONLY FOR FAIR TRIAL

Republican Party Perfectly Willing to Go to the Country on Its Tariff Record.

The Boston Herald thinks that an early start is necessary "if the Republican spellbinders expect to convince the people of Massachusetts that the Payne-Aldrich bill is satisfactory and for their interests." Inasmuch as the Democrats propose to make the tariff that center of their attack, it is incumbent on the Republican party to defend its position, and it is good politics for the party to anticipate the Democratic maneuvers. While this tariff bill is by no means perfect, it probably is as good a bill as it is possible to produce under political conditions. Each congressman endeavored to protect fully the industries and products of his district, while the two senators from each state took pains to see that the congressmen did not overlook anything. These efforts were participated in by Democrats as well as Republicans; indeed, Democratic senators and representatives proved themselves to be pretty good protectionists.

If the tariff is the cause of higher prices on the necessaries, how do the Democrats explain away the fact that the Payne-Aldrich bill actually lowers the duties on most of these necessaries, and in no case increases them, but does derive additional revenue for the government by increasing the tax on luxuries? This is the cold, hard proposition that the Democrats must have to face, and their only hope lies in being able to fool the voters. The Republican party asks nothing more than a verdict based on the evidence. —Springfield Union.

It is possible to condemn the whole tariff system or to condemn this tariff in detail, but the charge that under the pretense of lessening it increased the tariff burden is not sustained by the facts that are now available.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

PROOF OF FALL IN PRICES

Bureau of Statistics Shows the Reductions That Have Taken Place Recently.

The recent fall in prices in the United States is sharply illustrated by the bureau of statistics' figures covering domestic and foreign trade for the month of May, 1910, in comparison with earlier months of the current fiscal year. The bureau publishes each month a statement of the export prices of about fifty principal articles of the export trade, also the wholesale prices of certain important articles in the domestic trade. The export prices are those prevailing in the wholesale markets at the ports of exportation, since the customs regulations state that "all articles exported shall be valued at their actual cost, or the value which they may tduly bear at the time of exportation in the ports of the United States from which they are exported." The domestic prices quoted by the bureau are the wholesale prices of the articles named at certain great centers, chiefly New York, as supplied to the bureau from recognized and reliable authorities.

The May export figures show materially lower prices in practically all the important articles forming the export trade.

In the domestic markets nearly all articles show lower prices in May and June, 1910, than in the corresponding period of last year. The bureau of statistics' figures of domestic prices come down to a later period than those of export prices.

Panama Canal Figures.

The figures presented are what are known as the ordinary receipts and expenditures. The Panama canal is kept separately. Although having the power to issue bonds to provide funds for the continuing construction of the canal, the secretary of the treasury in the year gone advanced the funds for the Panama canal work out of the treasury, and will reimburse the treasury whenever he thinks the occasion is propitious for a canal bond issue.

The expenditures on account of the canal during the year were about $34,000,000, and if this expenditure were included in the total of the year's expenditures, the deficit would be less than $25,000,000, as compared with $118,000,000 last year.

It is stated that the advances to the postoffice department were only $8,495,000 for the fiscal year, as compared with $19,501,000 in the previous fiscal year.

In brief, the postoffice department was within eight and a half million dollars of sustaining itself. It was estimated at the beginning of the year that the postoffice department would call on the treasury for grants amounting to $16,000,000. Mr. Hitchcock cut this estimate in half.

When, Oh, When?

The elimination of the tariff issue from partisan politics will be a boon to the manufacturing interests of the United States.—Brooklyn Times.

Yes, yes; it will indeed be a glorious day for American labor, industry and business when the tariff issue shall be eliminated from partisan politics. That will be when there is no longer such a thing as partisan politics, no longer any free trade doctrinaires, no longer any importers of competitive merchandise, no longer any people with fixed incomes who want to get for their money the largest possible quantity of labor's products. Then we shall have Utopia. But when, oh, when shall we have it? About the time, we think, when the sky falls and we can catch larks.

The KITCHEN CABINET

THROUGH ENVY, through malice, through hating,
Against the world, early and late,
No jot of our courage abating,
Our part is to work and to wait."
—Alice Cary.

Early Rising.

The early risers are the ones who accomplish things in the world. To be up in the quiet, two hours before the stir and bustle of the day, gives one time to get well started for the day's work. For those who love nature, this season of the year is the time of all to get out and enjoy the trees and hills if one has them, or the sunrise and clouds, for those are the possession of us all.

We cannot all be as ambitious as the early rising Bridget who was up so early that she had all the work done and the beds made before the family were up; but with even a few minutes a day in the quiet of the uninterrupted morning when one's mind is fresh and rested from sleep problems are easier to work out.

It is said of Victor Hugo that his greatest novels were written in just a few minutes each day before breakfast.

It is amazing the amount of work that may be accomplished in a few moments of concentrated thought. If we wish to do anything very much we will find time to do it. The piece of sewing, the letters that should be written and many things about the house can be done without disturbing the other members who have not yet risen.

There are many things about cooking and baking that take much time that may be prepared before hand. Pastry is much better to be made and chilled before baking. One may prepare the flour, butter and lard with the salt, put into the ice chest and take enough for a crust, adding the water; this will keep indefinitely if kept cold.

Such step savers take time to get ready, but save time when it is often very pressing. Fruit may be prepared for the day, vegetables got ready, the cold dessert made and many things which may lighten the day's labor and thus make a smooth running, unhurried home.

Put in the hook, sew on that button, hem that frayed skirt before putting the clothes away, then they will be ready to put on. One is apt to put a garment away without attending to the bit of mending and forget it until it is wanted to wear. Constant vigilance is the price of being always neat and in order, but it is a price worth paying.

HAVE EASE, have health,
And spirits light as air,
And more than wisdom, more than wealth,
A merry heart that laughs at care."

Reminders for the Housekeeper.

Fish may be scalded much easier by first dipping them in boiling water.

A tablespoonful of turpentine boiled with the clothes will add greatly to the whitening process.

A good agency for keeping the air of the cellar sweet and wholesome is white wash made of good lime and water. Adding glue to it is only a damage, as it furnishes an organic matter which putrifies and is most unpleasant.

Charcoal is recommended as an absorber of gases in the milk room or refrigerator. Keep it there continually in a powdered state, renewing occasionally, especially in hot weather when unwholesome odors are likely to affect milk and butter.

Clear boiling water poured through tea stains will remove them.

Some Uses for Salt.

Salt water is a splendid gargle for sore throat. Salt water snuffed into the nose is a great relief for cold, catarrh and often for a headache.

Dry salt or salt water rubbed into the roots of the hair three times a week will stop falling hair.

If the chimney is burning out on a windy day throw in a handful of salt.

Salt sprinkled on carpets brighten them and keep down the dust when sweeping.

Hominy Muffins.

Mix a cupful of warm boiled hominy cooked to the proper consistency for the breakfast table with one tablespoonful of melted butter, a saltspoonful of salt and one cupful of milk. Add this mixture gradually to a cupful and a half of flour in which has been sifted two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Lastly add two well-beaten eggs and bake in hot buttered muffin pans.

To Remove Stains.

For certain kinds of obstinate spots, such as coffee and chocolate, for instance, there is no better deterent than glycerin, especially for fabrics with delicate colors. Apply the glycerin to the spot with a sponge or otherwise, let stand a minute or so, then wash off with water or alcohol. Hot glycerin is even more effective than cold.

Small Job.

Him—I was confused for a bit, I confess, but it took me only a moment to collect my wits—

Her—Yes, it couldn't take any longer than that. Go on.

Not an Objection.

"I think he'd like to join your club, but his wife wouldn't hear of it."

"She wouldn't hear of it? Why, I know of half a dozen men who would join our club if their wives couldn't hear of it."

Alfred—Are you going to pass your vacation at the seashore?

Gilbert—No, thank you. It's the woods for mine this year.

Alfred—Don't like the shore, eh?

Gilbert—Oh, I like it well enough, but it's too risky. I passed my vacation there last year and had several narrow escapes.

Alfred—From drowning?

Gilbert—No; summer girls. Seven of them proposed to me.

The Stomach Hold.

Col. H. N. Renouf, at the "Old Guard" banquet at Delmonico's, emphasized the importance to an army of a good commissariat.

"You have perhaps heard," he said, "of the company of privates that a patriotic lady entertained one Memorial day to dinner.

"It was a good dinner, and at its end a pretty maid servant entered with a superb dessert.

"'Dessert, sergeant?' she said to the stalwart young soldier at the head of the table.

"'Desert?' the sergeant answered. 'When I can get eats like this for nothin'? Nixie! Not me!'"

HARD TO PLEASE
Regarding the Morning Cup.

"Oh how hard it was to part with coffee, but the continued trouble with constipation and belching was such that I finally brought myself to leave it off.

"Then the question was, what should we use for the morning drink? Tea was worse for us than coffee; chocolate and cocoa were soon tired of; milk was not liked very well, and hot water we could not endure.

"About two years ago we struck upon Postum and have never been without it since.

"We have seven children. Our baby now eighteen months old would not take milk, so we tried Postum and found she liked it and it agreed with her perfectly. She is today, and has been, one of the healthiest babies in the State.

"I use about two-thirds Postum and one-third milk and a teaspoon of sugar, and put it into her bottle. If you could have seen her eyes sparkle and hear her say "good" today when I gave it to her, you would believe me that she likes it.

"If I was marron of an infants' home, every child would be raised on Postum. Many of my friends say, 'You are looking so well!' I reply, 'I am well: I drink Postum. I have no more trouble with constipation, and know that I owe my good health to God and Postum.'

"I am writing this letter because I want to tell you how much good Postum has done us, but if you know how I shrink from publicity, you would not publish this letter, at least not over my name."

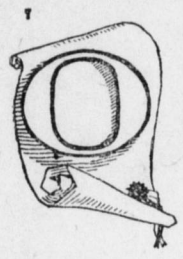
When a Will is Made



OCCASIONALly you hear of men who, heeding the uncertainties of existence, distribute their property in the life time, instead of directing the manner in which it shall be disposed after they have disappeared forever from the earthly scene. Such a case occurred a few days ago in Chicago when a man of means simply placed an estate valued at $2,000,000 in the care of a trust company for the benefit of his four children. Thus with one stroke he satisfied himself that his property would reach the hands of those for whom it was intended, and no doubt this was a gratifying achievement. For, after all, the will that every sensible man is supposed to make does not always fulfil its obpect and thus the world sees a contest of claimants which is often less desirable to view than a church quarrel.

The will, as an instrument of the law, owes its development to the Romans. India did not know of it before the conquest, and it was but a rudimentary affair in Mosaic law and in ancient Athens. The early Roman will was effectual during the lifetime of the person who made it, and it was irrevocable, its object being to secure the perpetuation of the family. Thus the hereditas was vested in a person who could be relied upon to carry on the family name and traditions. Often such wills were made on the eve of battle, and they were published in accordance with the law.

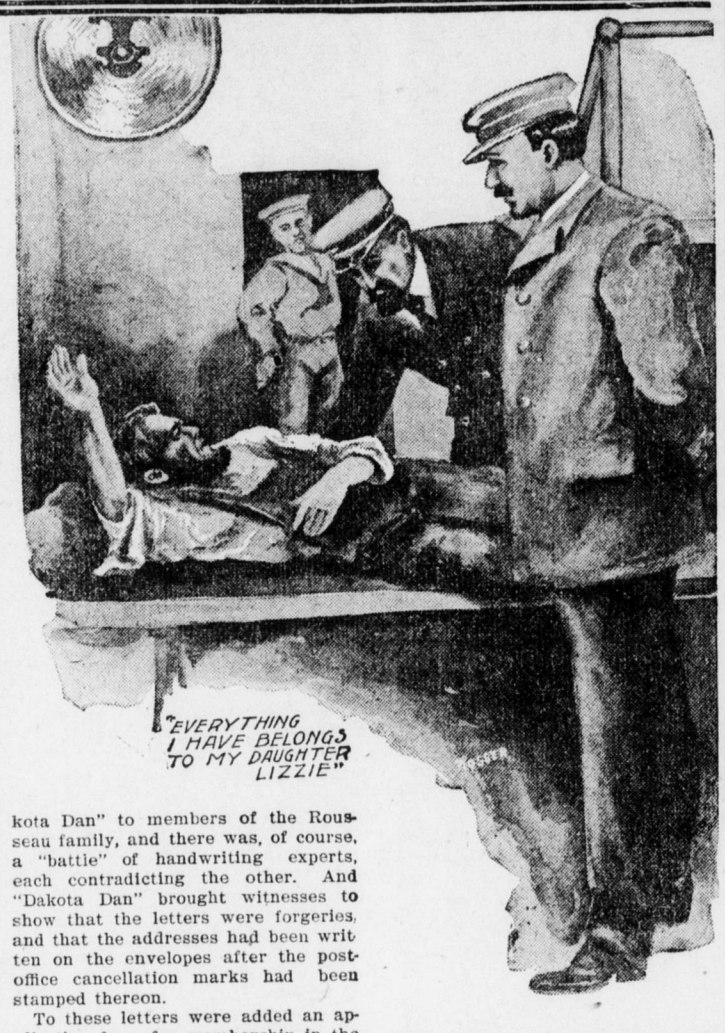
When Constantine the Great caused Christianity to be recognized by the state, this act had its effect upon willmaking, inasmuch as the duty of giving bequests to the church was encouraged. Monks and heretics, however, were not allowed to make wills or to take bequests. Then again, wills were deposited in churches; indeed, in Engand the church exercised jurisdiction in testamentary matters for centuries. Up to 1858 the probate and custody of wills lay with the English ecclesiastical courts, but the carelessness to which the documents were exposed at the hands of lazy and incompetent officials led to vigorous criticism of the system by Charles Dickens and other writers, and, as a consequence, the church lost its ancient privilege.

In modern days, by reason of the prosaic language of legal draftsmen, wills have lost much of their interest as purely human documents; but if one were to set himself to the task of writing the social history of a great city like New York, from its beginning, he could do no better than delve into the records of the surrogates' courts. All wills are probated there; children are adopted under the direction of the surrogates; they appoint guardians and discharge them again, when minors reach the age of legal discretion; they settle and distribute the estates of the poor and rich. Thus there is to be found in the probate records the details of social life by generations, and it is possible to trace the evolution of families, old and new, and their rise and fall on the tide of fortune.

The skeleton in the closet is often revealed by legal procedure, and, though it cannot be avoided, the family quarrel is bound to be aired when will contests are tried before a surrogate. Many elements enter into these contests—dissatisfied heirs, forgery, undue influence on the part of persons who have been associated with the property owner; the existence of more than one will; vague and indefinite language in a man's last testament, for "all things which are so written in a will as to be unintelligible are to be on that account regarded as though they were not written."

Russell Sage, who disposed of a vast estate without indulging in superfluous words, adopted a simple method to prevent litigation over his property. A clause of his will read: "Should any of the beneficiaries under this, my will, other than my said wife, object to the probate thereof, or in any wise directly or indirectly contest or aid in contesting the same or any provision thereof, or the distribution of my estate thereunder, then and in that event I annul any bequest herein made to such beneficiary, and it is my will that such beneficiary shall be absolutely barred and cut off from any share in my estate." There was no contest, although it was said that the beneficiaries grumbled a little bit.

One of the most dramatic will cases in the history of Massachusetts was tried a few weeks ago in the probate court of East Cambridge, where two claimants appeared to fight for a share of Senator Daniel Russell's estate, valued at $750,000. By his will the elder son, William C. Russell, was directed to share the estate equally with his brother, Daniel Blake, who had disappeared in 1885, after a quarrel with his father. The first claimant, who came from Medor, N. D., and was popularly known as "Dakota Dan," did not meet with the approval of William C. Russell and his cousin, Ferdinand B. Almy, who asserted that the man's real name was James D. Rousseau or Russaw and that he had familiarized himself with the history of the Russell family before putting his claim forward. Photographs of Rousseau were introduced in evidence; there were exhibits of letters alleged to have been written by "Dakota Dan" to members of the Rousseau family, and there was, of course, a "battle" of handwriting experts, each contradicting the other. And "Dakota Dan" brought witnesses to show that the letters were forgeries, and that the addresses had been written on the envelopes after the post-office cancellation marks had been stamped thereon.



To these letters were added an application form for membership in the Woodmen of the World. This contained the family history of Rousseau and said that he had three brothers and two sisters living and that another brother had been killed in a railroad accident. All of which was apparently true. "Dakota Dan's" experts asserted that the answer had not ben written by him, but had been filled in by others at a later period, his handwriting having been imitated. Thereupon the Russell lawyers showed that the paper had remained in the archives of the Woodmen of the World until the court ordered its production.

The trial dragged on for several months and as it was nearing the end a second Daniel Blake Russell, who was to be called "Fresno Dan," came out from his fruit ranch in Fresno, Cal. Out there he was known as Henry Johnson, but in Melrose, the home of the Russells, he was recognized as the missing "Dan" by the responsible citizens. He seemed to be well informed as to the details of Daniel's early life in Melrose, but "Dakota Dan" declared that his rival had been brought on to cheat him out of his rights. Judge Lawton, before whom the tedious case was tried, finally decided in favor of "Fresno Dan," and that night the judge was burned in effigy by an angry crowd of "Dakota Dan's" supporters. If the case is carried to a higher court little may be left of the estate, for the litigation has already cost a huge sum.

In the many efforts of Albert T. Patrick to free himself from a life sentence for the murder of William Marsh Rice, an aged recluse, people have almost forgotten that Patrick was first charged with forgery in connection with the old man's will. Patrick, a lawyer, had learned of Marsh's wealth and his weak state of mind through a suit in a Texas court, and he gained the confidence of Charles F. Jones, valet to the recluse, Jones becoming the lawyer's tool.

Rice, in fact, never knew Patrick, although the latter posed as the millionaire's attorney, always working through Jones, who confessed that he killed his master at the lawyer's instigation. Motive for the murder was held to be desire on the part of Patrick to obtain control of Rice's fortune by means of a forged will, and the murder was accomplished by Jones at Patrick's command, chloroform being the death medium. Jones was allowed to go free, while Patrick was sentenced to death. This was in 1902. Governor Higgins commuted the sentence to life imprisonment, and since that time Patrick has made 23 unsuccessful attempts to regain his freedom.

Phonographic records of testimony in a will case were taken in Boston for use at another trial, if permitted by the court. This unusual procedure was the result of the illness of one of the principal witnesses, who was obliged to undergo a surgical operation immediately after giving evidence. Should it be necessary to introduce these records, the attitude of the court toward them will be of interest to the legal profession generally, for it might serve to create a precedent.

Nuncupative or oral wills, the right to make which lies only with sailors at sea or soldiers in the field, are somewhat rare, but one was admitted to probate in Kings county last December by Surrogate Ketchham. This will was made by George O'Connor, chief engineer of the steamship Dorothy, while the vessel was in mid-ocean. All that he said was: "Everything that I have belongs to my daughter, Lizzie," and the will was proved with the aid of two witnesses, the captain and first officer of the Dorothy.

Army history was related in the will of Brig. Gen. Loomis L. Langdon, who died on January 7. One paragraph read:

"I give to my son, Captain Langdon, the silver tea service presented to me by the citizens of Brownsville, Tex., for what they termed my 'disinterestedness and patriotic services,' as they kindly chose to characterize my action during the absence of the Rio Grande garrison in organizing the citizens of Brownsville into an effective force and assisting in defending their lives and property against the attack of the bandit, Juan Curtinas, for which I received the thanks of the citizens."

His saddle also went to his son with this comment:

"The saddle I used during the great Civil war was on the horse that was killed under me in the battle of Olustree, or Ocean Pond, Fla., on February 20, 1864. The horse was hit five times, and one or two shots went through the saddle, but the bullet holes are concealed by a new cover of leather which was put on the saddle."

Not infrequently you hear of people who have been rewarded in wills for a kind act long forgotten, except by the person who experienced it.

In all probability little information about King Edward's will is likely to come to light, for there is no law in England to compel the probating of such a kingly document. British sovereigns are permitted to purchase property with the funds of the privy purse, and they have the right to dispose of their personal estate without publicity. It is related of George II. that, with the consent of his ministers, he burned the will of his father, George I., because it contained certain scandalous bequests to court favorites, and it is not improbable that other old kings adopted similar measures when they were deemed necessary to preserve the reputation of the reigning house.

Dickens tells in "Pickwick Papers" how Sam Weller saved his stepmother's will from destruction at the hands of his father, Tony.

"This here is the dockyment, Sammy," said Mr. Weller. "I found it in the little black teapot, on the top shelf of the bar closet. She used to keep her banknotes there afore she married, Samivel. I've seen her take the lid off to pay a bill, many and many a time. Poor creetur, she might ha' filled all the teapots in the house with vills, and not have inconvenienced herself neither, for she took wery little of anythin' in that vay lately, 'cept on the temperance night, ven they just laid a foundation o' tea to put the spirits a-top on!'"

"What does it say?" inquired Sam.

"Jist vot I told you, my boy," rejoined his parent. "Two hundred pounds vurth o' reduced counsels to my son-in-law, Samivel, and all the rest o' my property, of every kind and description wotsoever to my husband, Mr. Tony Veller, who I appint as my sole eggzekiter."

"That's all, is it?" said Sam.

"That's all," replied Mr. Weller. "And I s'pose as it's all right and satisfactory to you and me as is the only parties interested, ve may as vell put this bit o' paper into the fire."

"Wot are you a-doin' on, you lunatic?" said Sam, snatching the paper away as his parent, in all innocence, stirred the fire preparatory to suiting the action to the word. "You're a nice eggzekiter, you are."

"Vy not?" inquired Mr. Weller, looking sternly round, with the poker in his hand.

"Vy not!" exclaimed Sam. "'Cus it must be proved, and probated, and swore to, and all manner o' formalities."

IN THE LIMELIGHT

VAN VALKENBURG IS JUDGE

Judge Arba S. Van Valkenburgh, recently appointed United States district judge, western division of Missouri, is one of the youngest jurists on the federal bench. He is only 48 years of age, but his friends say this will not prevent him from making an enviable record.

Mr. Van Valkenburgh succeeded Senator Warner as United States district attorney for the western district of Missouri in 1905 and was reappointed by President Taft in December, 1909. He had previously served seven years as assistant to Major Warner in that office. He was born in Syracuse, N. Y., in 1862. When he was seven years old his parents removed to Illinois and later to Michigan. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1884, attaining high rank as a scholar.

Mr. Van Valkenburgh went to Kansas City in 1885 and entered the law offices of Dobson, Douglas and Trimble, being admitted to the Jackson county bar in 1888. The same year he formed a law partnership with D. J. Haff. He was married in 1889 to Miss Grace Ingold of Kansas City.

Mr. Van Valkenburgh was appointed assistant district attorney by Major Warner in 1898, succeeding William Draffen. Upon Major Warner's election to the senate in 1905 President Roosevelt appointed him to the place he since has held.

Law came naturally to Mr. Van Valkenburgh. His father, Lawrence Van Valkenburgh, was a justice of the peace back in New York in the early 60's.

Friends of the newly appointed judge say that at the department of justice in Washington Mr. Van Valkenburgh was considered as ranking among the ablest United States district attorneys in the country.

As United States district attorney, Mr. Van Valkenburgh first attracted national attention in the prosecution of all the packing companies to compel them to comply with the interstate commerce laws regarding the shipment of meats for export. He brought the suit in this jurisdiction and won it before Judge McPherson, sitting for Judge Philips.

POINDEXTER IN LIMELIGHT

Representative Miles Poindexter of Washington, candidate for the United States senate, whose cause has been espoused by Theodore Roosevelt, was born in Memphis, Tenn., fifty-two years ago and has lived in Washington nineteen years. He has served only one term in congress and has been identified with the insurgents, which makes the action of Colonel Roosevelt all the more important to national politics.

Mr. Poindexter has been a political foe of Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior in the Taft cabinet, with whom Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester and friend of Roosevelt, has had a feud for some time.

The Washington congressman visited Colonel Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill a few days ago and came away in jubilant spirits. Roosevelt had promised to aid him in his fight for the senate and he had a right to feel happy, for help from Roosevelt means help of the right kind and Poindexter needed it.

Mr. Poindexter was educated at Fancy Hill academy, Rockbridge county, Va., and at Washington and Lee university, Lexington, Va., in both the academic and law courses. He located at Wallawalla, Wash., in 1891 and began the practise of law. He was elected prosecuting attorney of Wallawalla county in 1892 and in 1897 moved to Spokane. He was assistant prosecuting attorney for Spokane six years and in 1904 was elected judge of the superior court and remained on the bench until nominated for congress in the newly created third district of Washington. He was elected by a majority of 15,000.

When Secretary Ballinger learned that Colonel Roosevelt had promised to lend his influence to the Poindexter cause he expressed the belief that the former president had been misled as to the situation in Washington. The seat in the senate to which Representative Poindexter aspires is now held by Samuel Henry Piles, who is not in the race for re-election.

GIVES MILLIONS FOR BOYS

David J. Ranken, Jr., one of the wealthiest men of St. Louis, has acted literally upon that much-advertised saying of Andrew Carnegie, that "he who dies rich dies disgraced," and has turned over his entire fortune, estimated at a little more than $3,000,000, to the David J. Ranken, Jr., School of Mechanical Trades, which he founded, reserving only $3,000 a year for his own modest uses.

The school was established a year ago with an endowment of $500,000, its purpose being to give boys over fifteen years old a trade education for a nominal sum. The school has prospered and to amplify its usefulness the additional endowment by Mr. Ranken has been made.

Mr. Ranken, who was born in Londonderry, Ireland, in 1835, and who has been a resident of St. Louis since 1862, made his money in real estate and stock transactions. The students at the Ranken school are charged only $30 a year, payable in three installments, and are given a two years' course. All their education is of a practical kind.

Ranken occupies three small rooms over a grocery. When he enters the door and climbs to his rooms he shuts out the world and declines to be seen. Here he has lived for years and worked out the plans and ambition of his life—the founding of the trades school where poor boys can receive a trade education for a nominal fee.

Mr. Ranken visits his school every day and watches the boys at work. He wastes no time in teaching theory in the lecture rooms unless it has some practical application in the shop work. Geometry is taught, but instead of having the boys compute the columns of a cone, they are taught the holding capacity of a funnel of like dimensions. Classroom work in all branches of drawing, carpentry, bricklaying, painting and steam engineering is along similar practical lines.

ASTOUNDS CHOATE'S FRIENDS

Not only the judges and lawyers of the country but all citizens who follow the affairs of the nation were astonished when charges of unprofessional conduct were made against Joseph H. Choate, former ambassador from the United States to Great Britain.

The American Bar association, of which Mr. Choate is a former president, will thoroughly probe the charges at its convention in Chattanooga, Tenn., next month and Mr. Choate's friends say there is no doubt that the verdict will completely exonerate him from all blame.

James R. Watts of Staten Island is Mr. Choate's accuser. He alleges that Mr. Choate caused him to lose hundreds of thousands of dollars through "omissions and wrongful acts" while acting as his attorney. Mr. Choate lost no time in demanding a thorough probe of the charges, the first ever made against him in his long and honored career.

Mr. Choate is 78 years old and internationally famous as a lawyer, diplomat, orator and after-dinner speaker. He was ambassador to the court of St. James from 1899 to 1905. His legal career began in 1855, when he was graduated as master of arts at Harvard and admitted to the bar of Massachusetts. He went to New York in 1856 and with the exception of the time he served as ambassador has been practising his profession there. He has been connected with many famous cases and was elected a bencher of the Inner Temple, England, in 1905, an honor conferred only on persons of distinction.

Mr. Choate's many friends say the charges against him are due to some mistake and is confident that the American Bar association will so determine

IT WAS ONCE HIS.

SOFT, WHITE HANDS

May Be Obtained in One Night.

For preserving the hands as well as for preventing redness, roughness, and chapping, and imparting that velvety softness and whiteness much desired by women Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, is believed to be superior to all other skin soaps. For those who work in corrosive liquids, or at occupations which tend to injure the hands, it is invaluable.

Treatment—Bathe and soak the hands on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of Cuticura Soap. Dry and anoint freely with Cuticura Ointment, and in severe cases spread the Cuticura Ointment on thin pieces of old linen or cotton. Wear during the night old, loose gloves, or a light bandage of old cotton or linen to protect the clothing from stain. Gompers' Testimony for the Tariff.

Mr. Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, made a visit of some months in Europe where he investigated trade conditions, and as he had no party to serve, what he says is entitled to great weight. Speak- of the cost of living in the United States as compared with European countries he says: "If the immigrant to this country is willing to continue living here on the same level he was obliged to accept in his native land he can find it for the same money." That is the truth. In fact, on the same level he can live for less in the United States, while his wages will be several times greater. That is the reason a million and more of immigrants come to this country annually. Mr. Gompers, in his report to the Federation of Labor, says:

Living is cheap to the wage worker in Europe because he does without what in America soon becomes a necessity to him—food in good quantity and quality, presentable clothes, and a comfortably furnished home, and in general a larger and freer life. Meat is usually from 25 to 100 per cent. higher than in the United States. The immigrant, coming to America, finds that if he can buy in quantity (and in cases where he need not) his flour, fuel, potatoes, oil, sugar, coffee, salt—the essentials for the plain table—all cost less than they ordinarily do in the land he left. The cheapness and abundance of many varieties of fruits and of our melons and tomatoes is a surprise to him.

Mr. Gompers goes on to point out the things that are cheaper in this country than in Europe—cotton clothing, shoes, newspapers, amusements, education, &c. He says that in no city in Europe did he find rents any cheaper, wages considered, than in the United States, while an American would be surprised over "how little the European renting wage-worker gets for his money." As to wages Mr. Gompers tells with surprise of the demands made at the British Trade Union Congress at Ipswich where it was stated that railroad workmen got $4.25 per week, agicultural laborers 21 shillings ($2.88), builders' laborers 9 cents an hour, and so on. And yet there are hundreds of thousands of workmen seeking employment in the United Kingdom even at such pitiable wages.

Why this enormous difference from the wages paid in the United States? Britian is a Free-Trade country, and the United States is under a Protective Tariff. And yet the Democrats and Insurgents want to reduce American workmen to the European level.—American Economist.

Emporium People Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove it.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Emporium, given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago, which has kept the kidneys in good health since, can be relied upon to perform the same work in other cases. Read this:

Mrs. John Summerson, W. Sixth St., Emporium, Pa., says: "My back ached most of the time and there was a soreness across my kidneys. Rheumatic pains darted through my limbs and in the morning when I got up, I felt tired and languid. Hearing that Doan's Kidney Pills were an excellent preparation for complaints of this kind, I procured a supply at Taggart's Drug Store. The remedies I had previously used had not helped me, but Doan's Kidney Pills brought relief at once. I now feel much stronger and better in every way."

The above statement was given in October 1907 and on December 14, 1909, Mrs. Summerson confirmed it in detail.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

If your liver is sluggish and out of tone, and you feel dull, bilious, constipated, take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets tonight before retiring and you will feel all right in the morning. Sold by all dealers.

ROOSEVELT ISSUE DISRUPTS THE NEW KEYSTONE PARTY

Pittsburg Leaders Say Berryites Bossed Convention and Froze Them Out—Berry is Sure to Lose, They Claim.

PITTSBURG, JULY 31—The defeat of the resolution expressing pleasure at the return to the United States of former President Theodore Roosevelt by the delegates of the Keystone party convention in Philadelphia last Thursday has split that organization asunder and a large part of the Republican end of it, will not give their support to William H. Berry the gubernational nominee.

While not permitting themselves to be quoted, several of the local leaders of the Keystone party yesterday expressed considerable bitterness at the outcome of the convention. They charged that the promoters of the Berry boom controlled the entire affair and would not give the Republicans any show whatever. The local leaders declared they would go along with the ticket because of the nominating of Cornelius D. Scully for State treasurer but they don't propose to work up much enthusiasm.

NARROW PIECE OF WORK

By refusing to adopt the Roosevelt resolutions, which was but an expression of pleasure at the return of the former President, the local leaders declare the convention drove out of the organization a large percentage of the Republicans. "It was supposed to be a convention of independents," declared one leader, "and embodied the principles for which Theodore Roosevelt has advocated. It was, therefore, but right that we should have adopted a resolution expressing pleasure that he was back again on the job in this country. It was a narrow piece of work to defeat the resolution and I cannot see how the Republicans of the convention can stand for it."

This same leader declared there was absolutely no hope for Berry's election. "We will go along and do the best we can, but there is little incentive to the work. We will put up a full congressional, senatorial and legislative ticket in the field in Allegheny county, but we are badly handicapped by the Berry candidacy. Berry's friends bossed the convention in a manner which made Boise Penrose look like an amateur.

TWO FATAL DEFECTS.

"They tacked the local option plank on the platform and declared for the single tax, both of which propositions would kill the ticket if nothing else would. The new ticket can do nothing else that I can see, but take votes from Senator Grim, the Democratic nominee, and give them to Tener, thereby making the election sure. It was an unfortunate affair.

The illustrated catalog of the Clarion State Normal School has just come from the printer's hands. and is a hondsomely illustrated edition. The frontis-piece is a beautiful panoramic view of the entire plant of seven buildings. In additson to this there are fine individual pictures of the Chapel, Seminary Hall, Navarre Hall, and Music Hall done in rich photographic brown color Pictures of the athletic team, the Principal's offices and Normal Training students at work adorn its pages. Perhaps the most attractive pictures are scenes from the Campus Pageant, that unusally attractive event of commencement week. These scenes represent a Roman Holiday and in detail illustrate "A Gladiatorial Combat," "The Barbarions who Sacked Rome," "Roman Girls Rejoicing," "Children Before the Emporor," "Worshiping Vesta," etc. The catalog also contains a description of the four years course of study which will be started at the opening of the fall term. The volume is indeed a very attractive one.

CASTE IN THE ARMY.

Civilians Find It Difficult to Understand Military Discipline.

One thing not commonly understood among civilians is the completeness of the barrier which divides army officers from the soldiers, or, as they are more generally called, the "men." It is always vastly amusing to those familiar with the service to observe the errors in this respect frequently made by the novelist and the playwright.

Personal qualifications have nothing whatever to do with the matter. A soldier may be a gentleman who has enlisted with the purpose of obtaining a commission, yet there can be between him and his officers no social intercourse of any sort, and severe penalties would be inflicted upon the officer who would attempt to disregard the rule.

It might seem that this enforcement of a caste sense would result in much hard feeling on the side of the men. Such, however, is not actually the case. It is taken for granted and recognized as conducive to "good order and military discipline." It is a military regulation like any other and implies no disgrace. Directly a soldier's enlistment is out or directly he rises from the ranks the prohibition is removed.—Delineator.

Roundabout.

The very budding barrister assumed the approved legal look of indisputable superiority.

"Now, my good lady," he observed, shaking an admonitory forefinger at the woman in the witness box, "you do not appreciate the gravity of the question. Endeavor to concentrate what brain power nature has endowed you with and answer me. What relationship does the defendant bear to you?"

"Right-ho!" responded the good lady. "'Is father's cousin was my cousin once removed, and 'is mother, marryin' me uncle's only brother"—

"My good lady," interrupted the bud despairingly, "I am not here to solve puzzles!"

"Well, I'm blowed!" ejaculated the lady. "You was talkin' jest nah as though you'd cornered most o' the brain pahr goin'. If you 'adn't swanked quite so much I'd 'a' told yer plainly an' simply! 'E'se me brother."—London Answers.

Old Moon Beliefs.

The health, growth and development of children and animals were years ago supposed to be influenced by the moon. If the sign was right at the time of birth they would be well formed and intellectual, but if it was wrong there was no telling what sort of creatures they would become. Every worthless fellow, every dog, rooting hog, fence jumping cow or kicking horse was believed to have been born under an unfavorable phase of the queen of night. Queer people or those who were of hateful disposition were children of the dark moon, with the sign below the heart.

His Mistake.

Edward—What do you think I carry in my watch case, darling? It is always the stamp of your last letter. Your lips have touched it, and mine often kiss the place where yours have been. Angelina—Oh, Edward! I'm awfully sorry, but I always use Fido's damp nose.—Illustrated Bits.

His Birthday Present.

Fair Customer—I want a birthday present for my husband. Dealer—Yes, mum. How would this old clock suit you? Fair Customer—Let me see. I've got a corner in my boudoir that will just do for it! And I've been wanting an old clock for a long time. Yes, that will do!"

To Be Noble.

Most of our unhappiness comes about because there is in us a scrap of the infinite that is not satisfied with finite things. There is a longing in the human heart to unfold into a better life. To do and to be noble is the deepest desire of every heart. — Dr. Henry van Dyke.

DEATHWATCH BEETLES.

Their Tapping Stands For Courtship and Not For Warning.

Much mental anguish could have been saved to past generations and some not so very far past if people had known that the mysterious tapping of the "deathwatch" stood for courtship and not death. A writer in the Scientific American explains that the various species of the beetle anobium and their bigger relatives of the genus xestobium not only attack furniture, but so completely riddle the whole woodwork of old houses by their borings as to render the structures unsafe. Indeed, a beam that has been tenanted by these insects for a number of years is little better than an outer shell containing a mass of wood dust. The xestobium is the common deathwatch, while the anobium also is in the habit of making a tapping sound.

The nocturnal tappings of these insects, distinctly audible in a room where there is an otherwise complete absence of noise, has for many centuries been regarded by the superstitious as a warning of the approach of death. This uncanny interpretation of a mysterious sound is scarcely surprising when it is remembered that only in recent years have naturalists discovered its true cause.

The little beetle has been found in some secluded spot, jerking its hard head at regular intervals upon the surface of the wood beneath it. So far as can be told, its rappings constitute a kind of courtship ritual. Obviously they have no connection with the latter end of mankind.

A RAIN OF FIRE.

The Great Meteoric Shower That Scared Folks In 1833.

In Scharf's "Chronicles of Baltimore" there is a vivid description of the starry hailstorm, the fiery meteoric shower, of 1833, and old files of newspapers are made luminous at that date with the impressions of editors and contributors. One writer said it was the grandest and most charming sight ever presented to the vision of man. Awakened from sleep, he sprang to the window, thinking the house was on fire, but when he looked out he beheld stars, or fiery bodies, descending like "torrents." The shed "in the adjoining yard to my own," he wrote, "was covered with stars, as I supposed, during the whole time." Professor Olmstead of Yale college thought that the exhibition was the finest display of celestial fireworks that had been witnessed since the creation of the world, although he, too, while knowing its character, was sufficiently imbued with the theological spirit of the time to believe that it was a solemn portent that carried a divine warning.

One editor whose comment upon this phenomenon was probably more quoted than any other he ever made said: "We pronounce the raining fire which we saw on Wednesday morning an awful type, a forerunner, a merciful sign, of that great and dreadful day which the inhabitants of the earth will witness when the sixth seal will be opened. Many things occurring in the earth tend to convince us that we are now in the latter days."

Dreams of Genius.

An interesting book might be written on the subject of the dreams of genius. Stevenson maintained that much of his work was only partially original. His collaborators were the brownies who ran riot through his brain during the hours of sleep. He instances the case of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." "I had long been trying to write a story on this subject," he writes, "to find a body, a vehicle for that strong sense of man's double being which must at times come in upon and overwhelm the mind of every thinking creature. For two days I went about racking my brains for a plot of any sort, and on the second night I dreamed the scene at the window and a scene afterward split in two, in which Hyde, pursued for some crime, took the powder and underwent the change in the presence of his pursuers. All the rest was made awake and consciously, although I think I can trace in much of it the manner of my brownies."—London Chronicle.

Opportunities and Limitations.

The world is full of opportunities. The world has a place for all kinds of people. If a man look no higher than pickax or hod, but be industrious, the world can use him. The opportunities for the man who has spent the least time in school, getting only the practical studies, are better and higher than come to him of the hod, but such a man soon reaches his limit. He is on a short ladder. The one who has laid the foundation of a broad general education as well as a technical one has, given intelligence, industry and loyalty, practically no limit to his career.—K. U. Graduate Magazine.

A Hard Problem.

A certain debating society is discussing the question as to which is the angrier, the husband who goes home and finds that the dinner is not ready or the wife who has dinner ready and whose husband does not come home. It is believed that the debate will end in a draw.

SOWING HIS WILD OATS.

Nights of Wasteful Debauchery That Wore Him Out.

"Yes, I'm dissipating too much," said the red faced rustic as he rubbed his head despondently.

"Dissipating?" gasped his friend.

"That's the word I used. You've heard that expression about 'burning life's candle at both ends?' Well, that's my case exactly. To tell the truth, I have been having too gay a time. Last night I went down to the Blue Moon and drank a soda. Then some traveling man offered me a cigar. Of course I had to take it."

"You don't mean it?"

"I mean just what I say. Then I bought a ham sandwich. I ate it and actually forgot myself and took another. On my way home I dropped into the church social for a few minutes. Some of the young ladies made me try the 'penny dip,' and I drew a blank."

"Such extravagance!"

"That's exactly it. Extravagance and dissipation will kill me. It was 9 o'clock before I reached home."

"Nine o'clock!"

"Yes. I must be sowing my wild oats. Well, I've finished now. Night before last I called on my girl. She wouldn't let me leave until I had taken her out and bought chocolate creams. Talk about pleasure hunting! I'm simply worn out after these nights of wasteful debauchery."—Pearson's Weekly.

BLINDING A SHARK.

A Pearl Diver's Ruse by Which He Made Good His Escape.

A successful diver must possess great courage and nerves of steel. Such a man connected with a large wrecking company was visiting some years ago the pearl fisheries in the gulf of California, where sharks abounded. On one of his trips in quest of the pearl oyster he had a narrow escape from a fearful death.

He had been instructed never to stir from the bottom until he had looked up and around. Fortunately he heeded the advice. Having filled his bag, he glanced quickly about and caught sight of a huge shovel nosed shark watching him.

In an emergency men think fast. Near the diver was a large rock. He moved quickly to the other side of it, hoping to dodge the ferocious monster, but the maneuver did not work. The shark watched every movement, changing his position by a slight motion of his powerful tail.

Time was precious, and the diver conceived the idea of blinding the shark by stirring up the mud. Under cover of that he might escape. He worked for dear life and had the water thick with mud in less than half a minute.

Slipping around the rock again, he rose to the surface, having barely strength enough to reach the side of the boat, and was hauled on board just as the voracious man eater made a rush for him.

Romeo Not Taken Seriously.

Juliet was only fifteen years old, but she thought she was quite grown up. One evening, says Mrs. R. A. Pryor in "My Day," she was receiving on the moonlit veranda a young man caller. He, too, it seemed, considered himself grown up. The anxious youth was moved to seize the propitious hour and declare himself. Juliet wished to answer correctly and dismiss him without wounding him.

She assured him mamma would never consent.

A voice from within—they were sitting beneath her mother's window—settled the matter:

"Accept the young man, Juliet, if you want to. I've not the least objection. And let him run along home now. Be sure to bolt the door when you come in."

Evidently the mother had small respect for boy lovers and wished to go to sleep.

A Prince Edward Island Legend.

There is a delightful legend among the people of Point Prim to the effect that when the English attacked the French fort at that place a chain ball from one of the attacking vessels cut the steeple from the old church located on the very point. In falling it toppled over the promontory and carried the bell which it contained into the sea. Dwellers along the point affirm that from time to time the sound of that bell comes over the waters at eventide and that its phantom tone is ever a warning of a fierce storm or some imminent danger to those who make their living by the spoils of the ocean.

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Innes, spinster and guardian of Gertrude and Halsey, established summer headquarters at Sunnyside. Amidst numerous difficulties the servants deserted. As Miss Innes locked up for the night, she was startled by a dark figure on the veranda. She passed a terrible night, which was filled with unseemly noises. In the morning Miss Innes found a strange link cuff button in a clothes hamper. Gertrude and Halsey arrived with Jack Bailey. The house was awakened by a revolver shot. A strange man was found shot to death in the hall. It proved to be the body of Arnold Armstrong, whose banker father owned the country house. Miss Innes found Halsey's revolver on the lawn. He and Jack Bailey had disappeared.

"Especially what?"

"Especially since Jack Bailey and Arnold Armstrong were notoriously bad friends. It was Bailey who got Arnold into trouble last spring—something about the bank. And then, too—"

"Go on," I said. "If there is anything more, I ought to know."

"There's nothing more," he said evasively. "There's just one thing we may bank on, Miss Innes. Any court in the country will acquit a man who kills an intruder in his house at night. If Halsey—"

"Why, you don't think Halsey did it!" I exclaimed. There was a queer feeling of physical nausea coming over me.

"No, no, not at all," he said with forced cheerfulness. "Come, Miss Innes, you're a ghost of yourself, and I am going to help you upstairs and call your maid. This has been too much for you."

About six o'clock Gertrude came in. She was fully dressed, and I sat up nervously.

"Poor Aunty!" she said. "What a shocking night you have had!" She came over and sat down on the bed, and I saw she looked very tired and worn.

"Is there anything new?" I asked anxiously.

"Nothing. The car is gone, but Warner"—he is the chauffeur—"Warner is at the lodge and knows nothing about it."

"Well," I said, "if I ever get my hands on Halsey Innes I shall not let go until I have told him a few things. When we get this cleared up, I am going back to the city to be quiet. One more night like the last two will end me. The peace of the country—fiddlesticks!"

Whereupon I told Gertrude of the noises the night before, and the figure on the veranda in the east wing. As an afterthought I brought out the pearl cuff-link.

"I have no doubt now," I said, "that it was Arnold Armstrong the night before last, too. He had a key, no doubt, but why he should steal into his father's house I cannot imagine. He could have come with my permission easily enough. Anyhow, whoever it was that night left this little souvenir."

Gertrude took one look at the cuff-link and went as white as the pearls in it; she clutched at the foot of the bed and stood staring. As for me, I was quite as astonished as she was.

"Where did—you—find it?" she asked finally, with a desperate effort at calm. And while I told her she stood looking out of the window with a look I could not fathom on her face. It was a relief when Mrs. Watson tapped at the door and brought me some tea and toast. The cook was in bed, completely demoralized, she reported, and Liddy, brave with the daylight, was looking for footprints around the house. Mrs. Watson herself was a wreck; she was blue-white around the lips, and she had one hand tied up. She said she had fallen downstairs in her excitement. It was natural, of course, that the thing would shock her, having been the Armstrongs' housekeeper for several years and knowing Mr. Arnold well.

Gertrude had slipped out during my talk with Mrs. Watson, and I dressed and went downstairs. The billiard and card rooms were locked until the coroner and the detectives got there, and the men from the club had gone back for more conventional clothing.

I could hear Thomas in the pantry alternately wailing for Mr. Arnold, as he called him, and citing the tokens that had precursed the murder. The house seemed to choke me, and, slipping a shawl around me, I went out on the drive. At the corner by the east wing I met Liddy. Her skirts were draggled with dew to her knees and her hair was still in crimps.

"Go right in and change your clothes," I said sharply. "You're a sight, and at your age!"

She had a golf stick in her hand, and she said she had found it on the lawn. There was nothing unusual about it, but it occurred to me that a golf stick with a metal end might have been the object that had scratched the stairs near the cardroom. I took it from her, and sent her up for dry garments. Her daylight courage and self-importance, and her shuddering delight in the mystery, irritated me beyond words. After I left her I made a circuit of the building. Nothing seemed to be disturbed; the house looked as calm and peaceful in the morning sunlight as it had the day I had been coerced into taking it. There was nothing to show that inside had been mystery and violence and sudden death.

In one of the tulip beds back of the house an early blackbird was pecking viciously at something that glittered in the light. I picked my way gingerly over through the dew and stooped down; almost buried in the soft ground was a revolver! I scraped the earth off it with the tip of my shoe, and, picking it up, slipped it into my pocket. Not until I had got into my bedroom and double-locked the door did I venture to take it out and examine it. One look was all I needed. It was Halsey's revolver. I had unpacked it the day before and put it on his shaving stand, and there could be no mistake. His name was on a small silver plate on the handle.

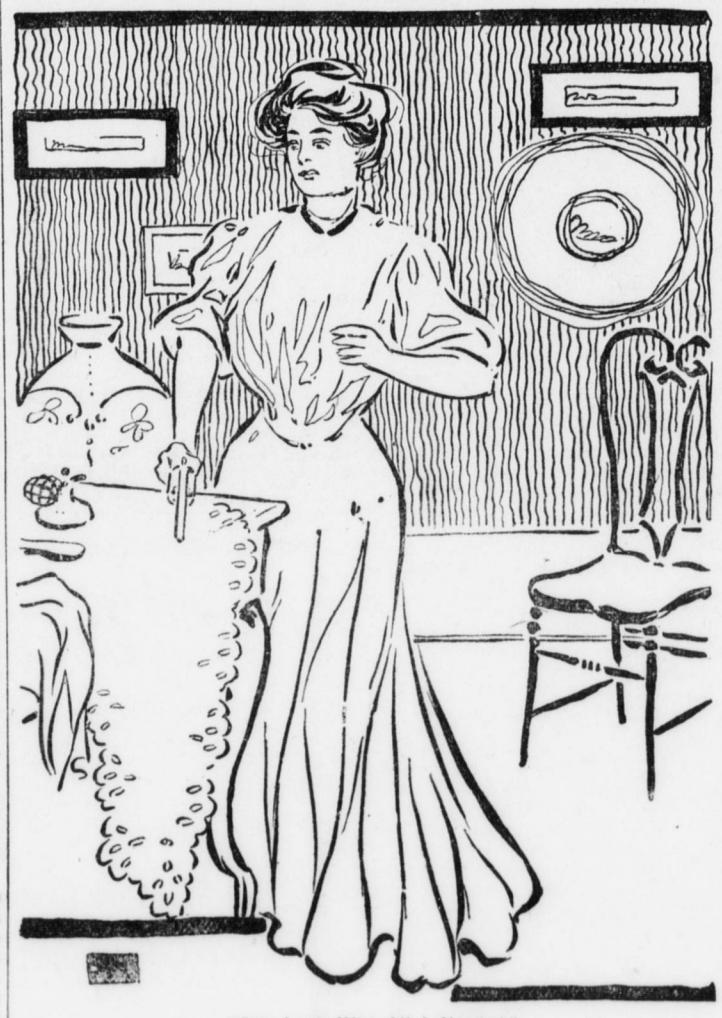
I seemed to see a network closing around my boy, innocent as I knew he was. The revolver—I am afraid of them, but anxiety gave me courage to look through the barrel—the revolver had still two bullets in it. I could only breathe a prayer of thankfulness that I had found the revolver before any sharp-eyed detective had come around.

I decided to keep what clues I had, the cuff-link, the golf stick and the revolver, in a secure place until I could see some reason for displaying them. The cuff-link had been dropped into a little filigree box on my toilet table. I opened the box and felt around for it. The box was empty—the cuff-link had disappeared!

CHAPTER V.

Gertrude's Engagement.

At ten o'clock the Casanova hack brought up three men. They introduced themselves as the coroner of the county and two detectives from the city. The coroner led the way at once to the locked wing, and with the aid of one of the detectives examined the rooms and the body. The other detective, after a short scrutiny of the dead man, busied himself with the outside of the house. It was only after they had got a fair idea of things as they were that they sent for me.



"One Look Was All I Needed."

I received them in the living room, and I had made up my mind exactly what to tell. I had taken the house for the summer, I said, while the Armstrongs were in California. In spite of a rumor among the servants about strange noises—I cited Thomas—nothing had occurred the first two nights. On the third night I believed that some one had been in the house; I had heard a crashing sound, but being alone with one maid had not investigated. The house had been locked in the morning and apparently undisturbed.

Then, as clearly as I could, I related how, the night before, a shot had roused us; that my niece and I had investigated and found a body; that I did not know who the murdered man was until Mr. Jarvis from the club informed me, and that I knew of no reason why Mr. Arnold Armstrong should steal into his father's house at night. I should have been glad to allow him entree there at any time.

"Have you reason to believe, Miss Innes," the coroner asked, "that any member of your household, imagining Mr. Armstrong was a burgair, shot him in self-defense?"

"I have no reason for thinking so," I said quietly.

"Your theory is that Mr. Armstrong was followed here by some enemy and shot as he entered the house?"

"I don't think I have a theory," I said. "The thing that has puzzled me is why Mr. Armstrong should enter his father's house two nights in succession, stealing in like a thief, when he needed only to ask entrance to be admitted."

The coroner was a very silent man; he took some notes after this, but he seemed anxious to make the next train back to town. He set the inquest for the following Saturday, gave Mr. Jamieson, the younger of the two detectives, and the more intelligent looking, a few instructions, and, after gravely shaking hands with me and regretting the unfortunate affair, took his departure, accompanied by the other detective.

I was just beginning to breathe freely when Mr. Jamieson, who had been standing by the window, came over to me.

"The family consists of yourself alone, Miss Innes?"

"My niece is here," I said.

"There is no one but yourself and your niece?"

"My nephew." I had to moisten my lips.

"Oh, a nephew. I should like to see him, if he is here."

"He is not here just now," I said as quietly as I could. "I expect him—at any time."

"He was here yesterday evening, I believe?"

"No—yes."

"Didn't he have a guest with him? Another man?"

"He brought a friend with him to stay over Sunday, a Mr. Bailey."

"Mr. John Bailey, the cashier of the Traders' bank, I believe." And I knew that some one at the Greenwood club had told. "When did they leave?"

"Very early—I don't know at just what time."

Mr. Jamieson turned suddenly and looked at me.

"Please try to be more explicit," he said. "You say your nephew and Mr. Bailey were in the house last night, and yet you and your niece, with some women servants, found the body. Where was your nephew?"

I was entirely desperate by that time.

"I do not know," I cried, "but be sure of this: Halsey knows nothing of this thing, and no amount of circumstantial evidence can make an innocent man guilty."

"Sit down," he said, pushing forward a chair. "There are some things I have to tell you, and, in return, please tell me all you know. Believe me, things always come out. In the first place, Mr. Armstrong was shot from above. The bullet was fired at close range, entered below the shoulder and came out, after passing through the heart, well down the back. In other words, I believe the murderer stood on the stairs and fired down. In the second place, I found on the edge of the billiard table a charred cigar which had burned itself partly out, and a cigarette which had consumed itself to the cork tip. Neither one had been more than lighted, then put down and forgotten. Have you any idea what it was that made your nephew and Mr. Bailey leave their cigars and their game, take out the automobile without calling the chauffeur, and all that at—let me see—certainly before three o'clock in the morning?"

"I don't know," I said, "but depend on it, Mr. Jamieson, Halsey will be back himself to explain everything."

"I sincerely hope so," he said. "Miss Innes, has it occurred to you that Mr. Bailey might know something of this?"

Gertrude had come downstairs and just as he spoke she came in. I saw her stop suddenly, as if she had been struck.

"He does not," she said in a tone that was not her own. "Mr. Bailey and my brother know nothing of this. The murder was committed at three. They left the house at a quarter before three."

"How do you know that?" Mr. Jamieson asked oddly. "Do you know at what time they left?"

"I do," Gertrude answered firmly. "At a quarter before three my brother and Mr. Bailey left the house, by the main entrance. I—was—there."

"Gertrude," I said excitedly, "you are dreaming! Why, at a quarter to three—"

"Listen," she said. "At half-past two the downstairs telephone rang. I had not gone to sleep, and I heard it. Then I heard Halsey answer it, and in a few minutes he came upstairs and knocked at my door. We—we talked for a minute, then I put on my dressing gown and slippers, and went downstairs with him. Mr. Bailey was in the billiard room. We—we all talked together for perhaps ten minutes. Then it was decided that—that they should both go away—"

"Can't you be more explicit?" Mr. Jamieson asked. "Why did they go away?"

"I am only telling you what happened, not why it happened," she said evenly. "Halsey went for the car, and instead of bringing it to the house and rousing people, he went by the lower road from the stable. Mr. Bailey was to meet him at the foot of the lawn. Mr. Bailey left—"

"Which way?" Mr. Jamieson asked sharply.

"By the main entrance. He left—it was a quarter to three. I know exactly."

"The clock in the hall is stopped, Miss Innes," said Jamieson. Nothing seemed to escape him.

"He looked at his watch," she replied, and I could see Mr. Jamieson's eyes snap, as if he had made a discovery. As for myself, during the whole recital I had been plunged into the deepest amazement.

"Will you pardon me for a personal question?" The detective was a youngish man, and I thought he was somewhat embarrassed. "What are your—your relations with Mr. Bailey?"

Gertrude hesitated. Then she came over and put her hand lovingly in mine.

"I am engaged to marry him," she said simply.

I had grown so accustomed to surprises that I could only gasp again, and as for Gertrude, the hand that lay in mine was burning with fever.

"And—after that," Mr. Jamieson went on, "you went directly to bed?"

Gertrude hesitated.

"No," she said finally. "I—I am not nervous, and after I had extinguished the light, I remembered something I had left in the billiard room, and I felt my way back there through the darkness."

"Will you tell me what it was you had forgotten?"

"I cannot tell you," she said slowly. "I—I did not leave the billiard room at once—"

"Why?" The detective's tone was imperative. "This is very important, Miss Innes."

"I was crying," Gertrude said in a low tone. "When the French clock in the drawing room struck three I got up and then—I heard a step on the east porch, just outside the cardroom. Some one with a key was working with the latch, and I thought, of course, of Halsey. When we took the house he called that his entrance, and he had carried a key for it ever since. The door opened and I was about to ask what he had forgotten, when there was a flash and a report. Some heavy body dropped, and, half crazed with terror and shock, I ran through the drawing room and got upstairs—I scarcely remember how."

She dropped into a chair, and I thought Mr. Jamieson must have finished. But he was not through.

"You certainly clear your brother and Mr. Bailey admirably," he said. "The testimony is invaluable, especially in view of the fact that your brother and Mr. Armstrong had, I believe, quarreled rather seriously some itme ago."

"Nonsense," I broke in. "Things are bad enough, Mr. Jamieson, without inventing bad feeling where it doesn't exist. Gertrude, I don't think Halsey knew the—the murdered man, did he?"

But Mr. Jamieson was sure of his ground.

A New Sun-Defying Cloth.

A new cloth is being made in Calcutta, India, which is manufactured on scientific principles to conform to nature's plan of warding off the sun's rays, as exemplified in the color of the skin and the pigments under the skin. It is the belief of physicians that one of the chief reasons for the many deaths recorded in hot weather is that of improper clothing. The designers of what we must wear to be of the elect may ordain a color or texture thoroughly unsuited to the prevailing climatic conditions, and safety and comfort are often jeopardized in consequence.—Van Norden Magazine.

WEAK KIDNEYS WEAKEN THE WHOLE BODY.

No chain is stronger than its weakest link. No man is stronger than his kidneys. Overwork, colds, strains, etc., weaken the kidneys and the whole body suffers. Don't neglect the slightest kidney ailment. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at once. They are especially for sick kidneys.

Ted Hiatt, Oswego, Kans., says: "For many years I suffered from kidney disorders. I was treated by specialists in Kansas City and Chicago, was told I had an abscess of the kidneys and an operation was advised. I thereupon began the use of Doan's Kidney Pills and gradually improved. Soon an operation was unnecessary as my kidneys were well."

"John, dear," said the young wife, "this is my birthday."

"I'm glad you mentioned it, darling," rejoined her husband. "I'll buy you a present the first thing when I get downtown."

"Well," she said, "I hope you won't get any cheap 98-cent affair."

"Of course I won't," he replied. "Why, I would be ashamed to present you with anything that cost less than a dollar."

Simple Truth.

You can only do clean washing with clean soap. You know that cocoanut oil, borax and naphtha are natural cleansers and sterilizers and that they can't harm fabrics. Easy Task soap is the only one that combines these scientifically, and for that reason it cuts washday work in two and does the work better than it ever has been done. Ten cents to test it; money back quickly if it isn't what is claimed for it.

Confused Impressions.

"Of course, you know the story of William Tell," said the serious citizen.

"To tell you the truth," replied Mr. Cumrox, "I'm not clear about him. I can't exactly remember whether he was a great marksman or a famous opera singer."

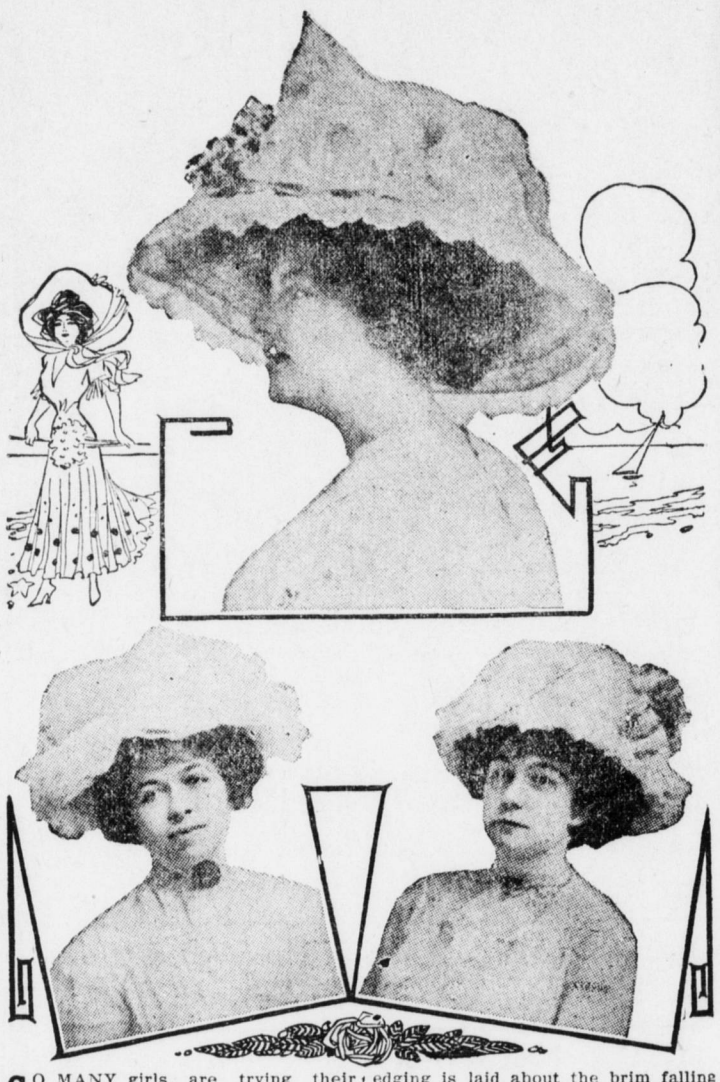
Millinery for All



SO MANY girls are trying their hands upon hat making at home that a few examples of those hats which are likely to be most successful in the hands of the amateur, are interesting just now. These are the hats made of embroidery or lace or Swiss and batiste which have come to be a staple for midsummer, and are known as "lingerie" hats. New models this year show many fabrics which have not been used heretofore. Fine dimities, lawns and mills, in fact any sheer, pretty midsummer material, such as are used for midsummer gowns, is considered available for the lingerie hat. The prettiest models show combinations of all-over embroidery and the materials I have mentioned.

The safest designs for the amateur are those made of edgings of lace or embroidery, either wide or narrow. All the hats are made over wire frames which are first covered with very sheer mull or with chiffon. This first covering is either shirred over the frame or made into a fitted casing for the brim and laid smoothly over the crown. A scant ruffle of wide edging is laid about the brim falling over the edge about the depth of the scallop. In such a hat the crown is made by sewing two rows of edging together and making a small puffed crown of them. A band and bow of wide ribbon and a cluster of familiar garden flowers finishes the hat, which is quite as satisfactory when made at home as when made elsewhere.

If narrow edging, of lace or embroidery, is used it is sewed row on row and quite often the under brim is faced with scant ruffles sewed in the same way. Very sheer batiste or other embroidery is often laid in a full double ruffle over the brim, for girlish wearers.

The lingerie hat, by the way, is worn by maid and matron alike. It has been called the "baby" hat because it was first made for little girls when they graduated out of bonnets and took on the dignity of hats built on a frame. It is durable and beautiful and may be taken apart and the materials laundered. Study the lingerie hat for, like the lingerie waist, it has come to stay.

IMPORTANCE OF GOOD LIGHT AND VENTILATION

One of Common Errors in Building Stables Is Failure to Provide Windows and Ventilators in Sufficient Numbers.

One of the common errors in building stables is to fail to provide windows and ventilators in sufficient numbers. In the cheaper barns it is the light especially that is usually left out of the calculation. This is one of the most serious mistakes when we stop to think of how cheap light really is and how valuable it is as a germicide.

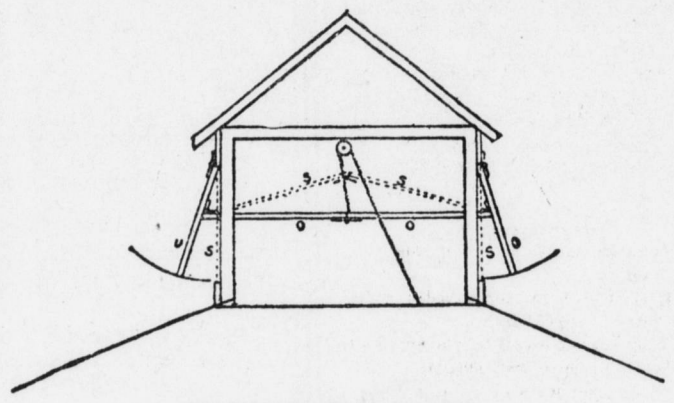
Many of the diseases of our live stock may be attributed to germs. Tuberculosis is caused by specific germs. The myriads of germs that escape from tubercular animals confined in a barn are disseminated through the stables, and sunlight is a factor in the destruction of these germs. In fact light destroys much germ life. Aside from the health standpoint good light in the stables makes work more pleasant and provides greater comfort for the farm animals.

Why not have the barn as light as the parlors of the farm house? It costs but a few dollars more if the windows are provided when the building is being constructed. Judgment, however, should be exercised in putting in windows in the right place. A uniform light should be provided in all parts of the stable.

The furnishing of light is an important one in the construction of any farm building and it is not hard to obtain if a little forethought is exercised. However, with ventilation it is different because considerable planning must be required when building to insure an ample supply of fresh air in the barn at all seasons of the year. It is important to have fresh air in the barn during cold weather and at the same time avoid draughts. In [illegible] windows and doors may be [illegible] in the winter time it is quite different. Inlet pipes for fresh air should be constructed as well as proper outlets for carrying off odors and bad air.

Ventilators should be distributed about the barn instead of relying upon one or two large ones far apart. The idea should be to equalize the ventilation so that the entire stable admits of proper ventilation.

Statistics show that the amount of pure air breathed by different animals during a period of 24 hours in order to supply oxygen needed is as follows: The horse requires 3,401 cubic feet; the cow 2,804 cubic feet; the pig 1,103 cubic feet. Thus it will seem that the horse will draw into and force out of his lungs each hour on an average 142 cubic feet of air; the cow 117 cubic feet; the pig 46 cubic feet; the sheep 30 cubic feet; the hen 1.2 cubic feet. It is therefore very important that our ventilation in our modern farm buildings should be provided with plenty of fresh air at all times in order to contribute to the health of the live stock



Self-Regulating Stable Ventilator.

With the outlet pipes it is not necessary to have more than one or two—often one is sufficient, depending of course upon the size of the barn.

As an easy way out of the difficulty we would suggest to our readers that they make a ground plan of their buildings giving exact dimensions as to height, width, length of building and submit it to manufacturers of ventilating apparatus, and ask for an estimate on the cost of installing a perfect ventilating system.

Is Dirt Good for Boys?

Some folks say: "Oh, let the boy play in the dirt. It is good for him. I wouldn't give a cent for a boy that keeps his clothes clean." That may be all right, but what about the boy's mother? Getting the dirt out of clothes by the use of old-fashioned yellow soap and a slow washday method is hard labor. If the boy's mother uses Easy Task laundry soap, which does half the work for her itself, and which reduces washday labor by fifty per cent, it is different. Easy Task is five cents a cake and is the greatest nickel's worth of soap ever sold.

MORE PINKHAM CURES

Added to the Long List due to This Famous Remedy.

Oronogo, Mo.—"I was simply a nervous wreck. I could not walk across the floor without my heart fluttering and I could not even receive a letter. Every month I had such a bearing down sensation, as if the lower parts would fall out. Lydia E. I recommended it to some friends and two of them have been greatly benefited by it."—Mrs. MAE MCKNIGHT, Oronogo, Mo.

Another Grateful Woman.

St. Louis, Mo.—"I was bothered terribly with a female weakness and had backache, bearing down pains and pains in lower parts. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly and used the Sanative Wash and now I have no more troubles that way."—Mrs. AL. HERZOG, 5722 Prescott Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women.

PRETTY IDEA FOR DRESS

All-over piece embroidery and deep flouncing are used for this; the piece embroidery is used for the princess upper part, the seams outlined by insertion; the deep flounce is gathered to a strip of insertion that is sewn to lower edge of princess part. The collar and sleeve bands are of plain cambric. The plaited frills of cambric that finish the puffed sleeves are divided by ribbon.

Hat of white straw, the brim slightly turned up in front, a wreath of May blossom forms the trimming.

Materials required: about 7 yards embroidery 18 inches wide, 3 yards flouncing, about 6 yards insertion, 1½ yard ribbon, 1¼ yard lace for edging collar.

Chantecler and peasant influence holds good in the summer fashions, both in color and line.

Persian patterns are seen in cotton and silk crepes; sometimes they form the entire garment.

WEAR HAT IN HOT WEATHER

Important for the Girl Who Has a Dislike for Hair of Different Shades.

Do you want streaked hair of 17 different shades when next autumn comes around?

If you do not you must make up your mind to wear a hat during the summer.

A bother, you say? Of course. Did you ever know anything connected with keeping fresh that wasn't a bother?

And it is not half as hard as spending time and money later getting over the effects of sunburnt hair.

Too strong a dose of sun acts on the hair by drying natural oils in the scalp and then burning just as a hot flatiron scorches linen.

If it is impossible for you to wear a hat, oil must be rubbed regularly into the scalp to counteract this drying effect.

Remember that the most beautiful hair in the world comes from the peasant women of Britany, who keep their heads covered with their little white caps.

A Summer Coat.

A simple but beautiful coat for wear over a lingerie gown in the summer evenings is of black chiffon, cut three-quarter length and slashed at the sides, the slashings being connected by taffeta silk tabs. The half sleeves are slashed and caught in the same manner, and in front—the neck is cut very low—the only fastening is a tassel of silver cord. All the edges are embroidered in a wave design in the silver. The chiffon may be mounted over light taffeta silk, and net may be substituted as the coat material. This wrap may sound difficult to make, but it is not so; and with the help of a lucky remnant or two the expense will be slight.

Irish Lace Collars.

With the return of warm weather the fashion has swerved back to Irish lace collars. We will wear more of them this summer than for years. The girl in her new suit has mostly Irish lace around the neck. For this reason she wears a four-inch Irish lace collar around her coat and a four or six inch one around her blouse, which is collarless. This collar dips down for an inch in front and is finished with a plaited jabot of Irish lace and linen.

VARIETIES OF TAME GRASSES

Careful Study Will Disclose Fact That Flocks and Herds Thrive Better on Mixture Than on One Kind.

(By S. M. MILLER.)

There is no one matter connected with good farm management that is more deserving of more careful attention than the growing of tame grasses, and the maintaining of the productive capacity of our permanent pasture land. The successful grass grower needs to have a practical understanding of all the species of tame grasses that we grow and cultivate on our farms as well as a knowledge of their requirements and conditions that are essential to their growth. Much of the success and many times all of the profits of our farms are directly dependent upon the amount and quality of hay and forage produced.

A cause of the inferiority of our meadow lands is the fact that they are supporting numberless useless weeds.

If we could rid our meadows of this pest it would add millions of dollars to the pockets of our farmers. How can it be done? By thorough tillage? By the use of more grass seed? Most emphatically no. That would be in direct opposition to the laws of nature.

We may prepare the soil in the best possible manner and sow on clover and timothy so thick that the grass will come up as thick as the hair on a dog and in some places we will yet find that the young plants will die out and their places be filled with noxious weeds.

These interspaces may be filled ever so often with fresh seed and the result will be similar which is conclusive evidence that every soil has a capacity for supporting a certain number of one kind of plants and it will produce no more than that number of that variety no matter how well it is tilled or how many are germinated on that particular soil.

When we fill these interspaces between the plants with another specie of grass a certain lot of its plants will grow and the rest will die soon after they have germinated.

The ones that grow will not interfere with the other varieties and the yield will be increased.

Practical experience has shown us that any soil will be more certain to yield larger and better crops of forage and hay when it is seeded with mixed grasses than when sown to clover and timothy alone.

Our flocks and herds will thrive better when fed on mixed grasses, (no matter whether in a green condition or cured for hay) than they will when fed on any one or two varieties sowed alone, no matter how nutritious these grasses may be.

We will find it in every way as important to balance our forage rations as it is the grain rations if we obtain the best results from a minimum amount of feed.

Settling Their Nicknames.

"A traveler from Liverpool got hopping mad the other day because some one called him a Liverpudlian," said the city salesman. "I couldn't blame him, but the man who unwittingly offered the insult declares that that is the proper name for people who live in Liverpool.

"He pointed out that it isn't easy to designate the inhabitants of all cities by euphonious names. New Yorker, Londoner, Parisian, Chicagoan, are so obvious that it would be difficult to say anything else, but how about cities that do not affiliate so readily with 'er,' 'an' or 'ite?'

"Those are the suffixes most commonly used to designate a set of natives. Take Cork. A man from Cork may be a corker, but that doesn't apply to a whole city full of people; neither does Corkite nor Corkan sound right.

"Then there is Memphis. What do you call a man from Memphis, anyhow, or from Amsterdam, or Dallas, or Bruges, or Bath? By the time you have studied out the proper appellations for inhabitants of all cities you will be apt to strike something that sounds funnier than Liverpudlian."—Washington Post.

Grim Music.

"On one occasion," said a London actor, "I decided to take a house in the suburbs and after a good deal of hunting about found one that suited my purse. Indeed, it was so excessively cheap that I was on the point of signing the lease at once, when it occurred to me that I had better take another look at it by gaslight. That night I was making a second tour of inspection and went into the dining room. It was a balmy summer night, and as I threw open the window I heard a peculiar tapping sound.

"Knock, knock, knock.

"I pricked up my ears to listen. There was silence for a moment, and then the noise continued. I turned to the caretaker and laughingly said:

"'See here, my friend, I know why this house is cheap. There's a ghost on the premises.'

"'Oh, no, sir,' he answered by way of reassuring me. "That's only the noise from the coffin factory hacross the way, sir. They hoften works there nights.'"

He did not sign the lease.

Caught the Jury.

"Oratory is, indeed, a lost art," said a Cleveland man the other day. "I used to go down to the courts just to hear the lurid speeches. Nothing doing in that line any more. The lawyers do not talk about flowers, rainbows and sunbeams any more.

"There was a lawyer in Cleveland years ago—Bill Robinson was his name—whose addresses to a jury always attracted a crowd. I will forever remember one of his sentences. The man he was fighting in the suit had a reputation as something of a miser.

"'Who is this man, who is he?' thundered Robinson. 'You know and I know that he boils his potatoes in widows' tears.'

"This phrase caught the jury, and Robinson won his case, but one doesn't hear any such 'oratory' as that nowadays."

The Barebone Family.

The celebrated name of Praise God Barebone was borne by a member of the Cromwell parliament called together after the dissolution of the long parliament in 1653. The royalists called the assembly "Barebones parliament." At the time when General Monk was in London Barebone headed the mob that presented a petition to parliament against the recall of Charles II. Of the Barebone family there were three brothers, each of whom had a sentence for a name—Praise God Barebone, Christ-came-into-the-world-to-save Barebone and If-Christ-had-not-died-thou-hadst-been-damned Barebone.

Poison In Young Rattlesnakes.

Observations on live rattlesnakes show that the poison glands become functionally active as soon as the snakes begin to shift for themselves, which must be very soon after birth. Experiments on the young ones six days after birth proved the presence of venom in small quantities. Experiments made three months after birth showed that considerable venom is secreted, as a pigeon innoculated at this time died in two hours with the usual symptoms of chronic poisoning.

The Value of Doors.

When a man is cross there isn't anything in the world more aggravating than a house with all the connecting doors down or one that has doors that close noiselessly. A man likes to slam a door. He gets more good out of slamming a door, in his opinion, than any one could get out of religion. It is his protest against everything in the world that is wrong, and it means that he isn't much older than the child that beats its head on the floor.—Atchison Globe.

Royal Mistakes.

Sovereigns and princes are strangely given to making astonishing mistakes while dealing with dates. The inscription on King Edward VII.'s coffin that he died in the ninth year of his reign instead of the tenth is only an example of many similar errors. In November, 1858, Queen Victoria wrote to the late king to inform him that he might consider himself emancipated from parental authority and control as he was now eighteen years old and therefore of age. Her majesty's letter which was very long, was a quasi sermon, and it ended by informing the then Prince of Wales that he would be forthwith made a knight of the Garter and a colonel in the army. How Queen Victoria and Prince Albert fell into so extraordinary a mistake it is impossible to understand, for the prince had only then completed his seventeenth year. Dean Wellesley, to whom the young prince showed the letter, at once detected the serious error into which the queen had fallen, but he thought it best to say nothing.—London Truth.

Got Full Measure.

All yesterday James had played truant from school, and when the irate master raised his cane threateningly James burst into a flood of tears.

"Please don't lick me, sir," he sobbed.

"And why should I not lick you, pray?" thundered the schoolmaster.

"W'y, sir, 'cos I think I've 'ad enough!" gasped James. "Yesterday the boy as I played truant with and I fell out and he licked me, and a man we threw stones at caught me and licked me, the driver of a cart we hung on to licked me, the owner of a cat we chased licked me. Then when I got home mother licked me, and after that father licked me, and then mother licked me again for calling her a sneak for telling father."

"Well," responded the master grimly, "by this time one licking more or less won't make much difference, and it seems hard I shouldn't have my whack. Come here, sir!"—London Answers.

Went Back on His Authority.

Leslie Stephen's single meeting with Freeman, the historian, was in the nature of a collision. "I came in contact with him only once," he said. "He wrote a life of Alfred for the Dictionary of National Biography under my editorship, but declined to do more because we had a difference of opinion as to whether Athelstane should be spelled with an 'A.' That was, I confess, a question to which I was culpably indifferent, but I had taken competent advice, and my system (I forget what it was) had been elsewhere sanctioned by the great historian Stubbs. Now, as Freeman was never tired of asserting the infallibility of Stubbs, I innocently thought that I might take refuge behind so eminent an authority. The result was that for once Freeman blasphemed Stubbs and refused to cooperate any longer in an unscholarlike enterprise."

Three Men.

When H. H. Rogers was in the prime of his power, says a New York writer, he formed a "friendship partnership" with Mark Twain and Thomas Brackett Reed and took personal charge of their affairs, looking after them as he would a couple of children. It was great fun for all three, and especially Rogers. Neither Clemens nor Reed had any sense for business. The big ex-speaker came to New York a poor man. Five years later he died suddenly, and his estate assayed over $600,000. He probably had no idea what he was worth at any stage. Rogers made as much or more money for Clemens.

A Child's Character.

No artist work is so high, so noble, so grand, so enduring, so important for all time, as the making of character in a child.—Charlotte Cushman.

The First Requisite

in letter writing is that the paper used be above criticism.

Your stationary should reflect your taste, character and refinement, and convey your personality.

The Eaton, Crane Pike Writing Paper sare always the first choice of discriminating people. They are by far the finest social correspondence papers made. They are first in quality, and absolutely correct in style. Thsir artistic and painty boxing adds much to their general attractiveness.

Come in and let us show you our line of the justly popular EATON CRANE & PIKE papers.

LUDLAMS

If your liver is sluggish and out of tone, and you feel dull, bilious, constipated, take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets tonight before retiring and you will feel all right in the morning. Sold by all dealers.

Be sure and take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with you when starting on your trip this summer. It cannot be obtained on board the trains or steamers. Changes of water and climate often cause sudden attacks of diarrhoea, and it is best to be prepared. Sold by all dealers.

The Best Hour of Life

is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt, of Rocky Mt. N. C., when he was suffering intensely, as he says, "from the worst cold I ever had, I then proved to my great satisfaction, what a wonderful Cold and Cough cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For, after taking one bottle, I was entirely cured. You can't say anything too good of a medicine like that." Its the surest and best remedy for diseased lungs, Hemorrhages, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hay Fever, any Throat or Lung trouble, 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

They Have a Definite Purpose.

Foley Kidney Pills give quick relief in cases of kidney and bladder ailments. Mrs. Rose Glaser, Terre Haute, Ind., tells the result in her case. "After suffering for many years from a serious case of kidney trouble and spending much money for so called cures, I found Foley Kidney Pills the only medicine that gave me a permanent cure. I am again able to be up and attend to my work. I shall never hesitate to recommend them." For sale by Emporium Drug Co.

Life on Panama Canal

has had one frightful drawback—malaria trouble—that has brought suffering and death to thousands. The germs cause chills, fever and ague, biliousness, jaundice, lassitude, weakness and general debility. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malaria troubles. "Three bottles completely cured me of a very severe attack of malaria," writes Wm. A. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "and I've had good health ever since." Cure Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles, and prevent Typhoid, 50c. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable for children and adults, and when reduced with water and sweetened, it is pleasant to take. Sold by all dealers.

In buying a cough medicine, don't be afraid to get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger from it, and relief is sure to follow. Especially recommended for coughs, colds and whooping cough. Sold by all dealers.

When the digestion is all right, the action of the bowels regular, there is a natural craving and relish for food. When this is lacking you may know that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They strengthen the digestive organs, improve the appetite and regulate the bowels. Sold by all dealers.

Staggers Skeptics.

That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica Salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald, wound or piles, staggers skeptics. But great cures prove its a wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, felons, eczema, skin eruptions, as also chapped hands, sprains and corns. Try it. 25c at all druggists.

Struck a Rich Mine.

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., says he struck a perfect mine of health in Dr. King's New Life Pills for they cured him of Liver and Kidney Trouble after 12 years of suffering. They are the best pills on earth for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia, Debility. 25c at all Druggists.

EVADING THE LAW.

The Pictures of Flying Birds In a Mohammedan Mosque.

According to one of the tenets of the Mohammedan religion, it is a sin to make a picture of any living thing. The elaborate decorations of the palaces and mosques of the east are almost exclusively made up of ingeniously interlaced geometric designs, arabesques or flowers, intermixed with sentences of the Koran.

There is a belief among Mussulmans that at the day of judgment Allah will demand that the artist who has made the image of a living thing shall endow that image with life and that, failing to do this, the artist will be sent to perdition for his sin.

A gentleman who visited a mosque in Algiers found that the tiles with which the building is decorated, which are very old and very beautiful, are adorned with flights of birds. He expressed surprise at this and asked if the command against such representation were a modern edict.

"Oh, no," answered the pious Algerian to whom he addressed the question. "These are not pictures of living birds."

"But they are painted as if flying across the tiles," the other said in some astonishment.

"Yes," the Mussulman replied, "but do you not see that about the neck of each there is a fine black line? That is to show that the artist painted only dead birds, and the command of the Koran is not violated."

DECAY OF TIN.

Remarkable Alteration Which Takes Place in the Metal.

Anything made of tin, it seems, is doomed to a brief existence. This metal is subject to a remarkable kind of alteration, a species of disease to which it is liable. When exposed to the air tin undergoes no chemical change, as do iron and copper, which of course, chemically combine with the oxygen or with water. The tin, however, still remains metallic tin, but gradually becomes gray and dull and falls to fine powder.

The disease is "catching." It infects or induces the same change in other masses of tin in the immediate neighborhood. We are told that in a Russian imperial magazine, in place of tin uniform buttons, little heaps of powder were found. A consignment of Banka tin sent from Rotterdam to Moscow in 1877 arrived at the latter place in the form of powder. This alteration is due to a change in the internal crystalline structure of the metal and is analogous to the slow transformation of monoclinic sulphur to rhombic sulphur. As a result, objects of tin of archaeological interest are rare. Those that have been found have been in the form of earthenware vessels, knobs etc., which have been found in the Swiss lake dwellings coated with tin foil. Cassiterite or tinstone is the single ore from which the tin has been obtained in any quantity.—Knowledge and Scientific News, London.

A PLACID MERCHANT.

He Had Some Regard For the Social Side of Trade.

The summer visitor in a small seaport town was amazed and amused at the assortment of merchandise displayed in the little store at the head of the wharf. The showcase was devoted to an assortment of candy at one end and a lot of cigars and tobacco at the other end and no barrier between. Next to the showcase stood a motor engine valued at several hundred dollars.

Thinking to please the proprietor the visitor remarked that even the large department stores in Boston could not boast of such a collection.

"Well," he said, "I ain't aping them stores, I can tell you. I aim to keep what my folks want. When a man wants an engine for his boat he wants it, and if the fish are running he can't wait to send way to Portland or Boston for it. He wants it when he does then and there."

After a little pause he continued "I don't like the way they do business in them big stores, anyway. Why when you go into a store up to Boston the first thing you know somebody asks you what you want.

"Now, I never do anything like that. If a man comes into my place I pass the time o' day and ask him to set and after he's set and talked a while if he wants anything he'll tell me.

"I never pester a man to buy. May be he ain't come to buy; maybe he's come to talk."—Youth's Companion.

The First Universities.

To fix precisely the date of the rise of the first universities is impossible for the reason that they were not founded, but grew. They were started by a few able men who had something they wished to teach and youths wished to learn. Gradually the free voluntary center of learning became the organized affair we know as the university. Among the earliest of these centers of learning were Salerno, Naples and Bologna, Italy being the first land to experience the literary revival. We may say that Salerno university was fairly established by the year 1060, the University of Bologna by 1160 and the University of Naples by the year 1200. The University of Paris, which owes its existence to the genius of Abelard, was founded about the same time.—New York American.

Handed It Back.

A clergyman in the neighborhood of Nottingham was complimenting a tailor in his parish on repairs which he had done for him. In the course of conversation he, however, incautiously observed: "When I want a good coat I go to London. They make them there." Before leaving the shop he inquired, "By the bye, do you attend my church?"

"No," was the reply. "When I want to hear a good sermon I go to London. They make them there."—London Tit-Bits.

Tea In the Time of Buddha.

At the time of Buddha China was enjoying a large foreign commerce in tea. It was carried by her junks to Japan, Korea, Tonquin, Anam, Cochin, Burma, Siam, India, Ceylon, Persia and Arabia. According to one record, it was sent to a great black river country west of Arabia, from which it was separated by a long and very torrid sea, which must have been Egypt. It was carried by caravans to Manchuria, Mongolia, Kuldja, Tartary, Tibet, Persia and northern India.

Couldn't Tell.

"Has your pocket ever been picked?"

"Really, I don't know. It never was before I got married. If it has been since I, of course, would have no way of finding out about it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Inspiration.

"This is a pretty good poem. You must have had some strong inspiration."

"I had. The editor promised me $10." Louisville Courier-Journal.

FUNERAL COSTUMES.

Their Extravagance Curbed by Law at One Time In England.

Sumptuary mourning laws were formerly found necessary in England to restrict the extravagance of the nobility and their imitators in the matter of funeral costume. At the end of the fifteenth century it was laid down that dukes, marquises and archbishops should be allowed sixteen yards of cloth for their gowns, "sloppes" (mourning cassocks) and mantles; earls fourteen, viscounts twelve, barons eight, knights six and all persons of inferior degree only two. Hoods were forbidden to all except those above the rank of esquire of the king's household.

In the following century Margaret, countess of Richmond, mother of Henry VII., issued an ordinance for the "reformation of apparel for great estates of women in tyme of mournings." So it seems that men and women have met in the extravagance of sorrow.

Even 200 years ago London tradesmen found that court mourning seriously affected their business. Addison relates that at a tavern he often met a man whom he took for an ardent and eccentric royalist. Every time this man looked through the Gazette he exclaimed, "Thank God, all the reigning families of Europe are well." Occasionally he would vary this formula by making reassuring remarks respecting the health of British royalists. After some time Addison discovered that this universal royalist was a colored silk merchant, who never made a bargain without inserting in the agreement, "All this will take place as long as no royal personage dies in the interval."—London Chronicle.

MENTAL INFLUENCES.

The State of the Mind Has a Direct Effect Upon the Body.

A good deal is said in these days about the effect of mind on matter in the way of the cure of disease, but less is heard about mental influences as a cause of bodily ills, yet it is an old truth that the state of mind has a direct effect on the body. The gloom and depression caused by worry and anxiety create a morbid condition of the physical system. It is impossible to feel well physically when the mind and spirits are downcast. The blood does not circulate properly, appetite fails, the head aches, and if these morbid conditions continue more deep seated ailments are likely to arise, and cancer may be one of them.

With many persons a fit of anger is followed by an attack of indigestion. Excitement destroys the appetite, bad news creates nausea, fright causes faintness, and so on. Violent or depressing emotions always disturb the equilibrium of body and mind alike. This being the case, it is inevitable that when these emotions often recur or become continuous serious physical results will follow. The obvious lesson is, then, that mental serenity tends to health—is, in fact, an essential element of health—and that instead of resorting to mind "cures" after the health is broken it is wise to preserve the serenity as a preventive and safeguard against disease.—Indianapolis Star.

Lordly Disraeli.

Disraeli once told a lady that two possessions which were indispensable to other people he had always done without. "I made," she said, "every kind of conjecture, but without success, and on my asking him to enlighten me he solemnly answered that they were a watch and an umbrella. 'But how do you manage,' I asked, 'if there happens to be no clock in the room and you want to know the time?' 'I ring for a servant,' was the magniloquent reply. 'Well,' I continued, 'and what about the umbrella? What do you do, for instance, if you are in the park and are caught in a sudden shower?' 'I take refuge,' he replied, with a smile of excessive gallantry, 'under the umbrella of the first pretty woman I meet.'"

Easier to Write It.

In 1871 Edward Lear was staying with the governor of Bombay at Mahabaleshwar, the hill station of the Bombay presidency. I was there and took a walk with him one day. He asked me the name of some trees. I told him thy were called "jambul" trees in India. He immediately produced his sketch book and in his inimitable style drew a bull looking into a jam pot. He said it would help him to remember the name.—London Spectator.

Pleasant Prospect.

"Yo' isn't stopped at de Palace hotel befo', is yo', boss?" inquired the colored man who was piloting a just arrived traveler from the railway station to the hostelry.

"No. But what makes you sure of it?"

"Uhkase yo' gwine dar now, sah."—Puck.

Amiability Rules.

Don't flatter yourself that friendship authorizes you to say disagreeable things to your intimates. On the contrary, the nearer you come into relation with a person the more necessary do fact and courtesy become.—Holmes.

Admitted.

She—Oh, I have no doubt you love me, but your love lacks the supreme touch—unselfishness.

"What makes you say that?"

"You admit it. You want me for yourself alone, you say."

The Utopia of today is the reality of tomorrow.—Passy.

ECCENTRIC PAVING.

Louis XIV. Covered One Courtyard With Silver and Gold.

Many interesting instances of individual eccentricity or extravagance in the selection of material for paving streets and roads may be cited. It is related that when Maximilian Emanuel succeeded to the throne of Bavaria he celebrated the event by causing one of the roads leading to his palace to be paved with plates of burnished copper. This, gleaming in the sunshine, gave all the effect of the more precious metal—gold.

We are told also that Louis XIV. paved one of the courts at Versailles with squares of silver, each of which had recorded upon it some triumph of the French arms. In the center of the court stood a large tablet of gold in representation of the luxurious monarch's favorite emblem, the sun. Memoirs of the time of Louis make mention of a lodge erected to the love of his youth, the fair Louise de la Valliere. The approach was paved with mirrors wherein was painted an allegory setting forth the undying devotion of the king to Louise.

An eccentric nobleman of Milan conceived the idea of paving the courtyard of his palace with slabs of marble, granite and other stone, each from a different land. It is said that Europe, America, Asia, Africa and Australia all contributed materials to make up this quaint mosaic composed of more than 1,000 pieces, every one of which was suitably inscribed with the name of the country or state whence it came.—Harper's Weekly.

WITTY TOASTS.

Humorous Hits That Have Helped to Enliven Banquets.

A publisher once gave the following: "Woman, the fairest work in all creation. The edition is large, and no man should be without a copy."

This is fairly seconded by a youth who, giving his distant sweetheart, said, "Delectable dear, so sweet that honey would blush in her presence and treacle stand appalled."

Further, in regard to the fair sex, we have: "Woman—she needs no eulogy. She speaks for herself." "Woman, the bitter half of man."

In regard to matrimony some bachelor once gave, "Marriage, the gate through which the happy lover leaves his enchanted ground and returns to earth."

At the marriage of a deaf and dumb couple some wit wished them "unspeakable bliss."

At a supper given to a writer of comedies a wag said: "The writer's very good health. May he live to be as old as his jokes."

From a law critic: "The bench and the bar. If it were not for the bar there would be little use for the bench."

A celebrated statesman while dining with a duchess on her eightieth birthday in proposing her health said:

"May you live, my lady duchess, until you begin to grow ugly."

"I thank you, sir," she said, "and may you long continue your taste for antiquities."—London Tit-Bits.

George Washington's Sobriquets.

Washington was called by many sobriquets. He was first of all "Father of His Country." "Providence left him childless that his country might call him father." Sigourney calls him "Pater Patriae;" Chief Justice Marshall, the "American Fabius." Lord Byron in his "Ode to Napoleon" calls him "the Cincinnatus of the West." For having a new world on his shoulders he was called the "Atlas of America." The English soldiery called him by the sarcastic nickname of "Lovely Georgius." Red Jacket, the Seneca Indian chief, called him the "Flower of the Forest." The Italian poet Vittorio Alfieri called him "Deliverer of America." His bitter opponents sarcastically called him the "Stepfather of His Country" during his presidency.

Partnership.

Once when I was a little boy I slept out in a barn all night, and it was cold, and I shivered and couldn't sleep. But in the next yard there was a little dog, and he was cold, too, and he shivered. And I got him over in the barn, and we lay down together, and he snuggled up to me, and I snuggled up to him. And pretty soon we were both warm, and we both slept. I had warmed him, and he had warmed me. And so if a fellow snuggles a little hope or a little joy or a little desire or a little beauty close up against his ache, why, pretty soon it has warmed him, and he has warmed it. He is stronger and better and the whole world of hope or joy or beauty or desire is stronger and better for it.—Larry Ho in St. Paul Dispatch.

Breezy County News

CAMERON.

The Temperance Society held an ice cream social Saturday evening. Every body reported a fine time.

Mrs. Fred Schwab, Mrs. Wm. McVane and Mrs. Fred Comley were Emporium visitors Friday.

Harold, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jinks who was quite sick, is much improved.

Fred Comley came home Friday and returned Monday to Harrison Valley where he is employed with the Elk Tanning Co., at that place.

A large number of town folks were Emporium visitors Tuesday and took in the sights at the circus.

A party of young folks consisting of ten from Emporium, called on E. F. Comley and family Wednesday evening. After enjoying themselves to a fine chicken supper returned home in the wee hours.

Mrs. James Leonard is quite sick at this writing. We hope for her speedy recovery.

Mrs. Dan Sullivan received the sad news Saturday of the death of her mother in Toledo, Ohio. She left Sunday for that place.

Mr. Olson, of Madera, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Ed. Krape at this place.

The clam bake held Saturday, west of Cameron was largely attended. All report a lively time.

D. B. Peterson and wife were the guests of F. B. Hoag and wife Saturday.

Wm. Leonard, of Driftwood, visited friends between trains Sunday.

Mr. Devling, of Sterling Run, called in our town Saturday, collecting taxes.

Miss Josephine Hanes returned from Renovo Tuesday.

Miss Maggie Hanes, of Calder, called on her sister, Mrs G. L. Page, at this place Friday.

A lively ball game was played at this place Sunday between Emporium and Cameron, 6 to 9 in favor of the home team. Who said Cameron could not play ball.

James Leonard and J. E. Lester have returned home.

Owing to the fine hay weather the farmers have nearly all completed their haying.

Frank Sullivan said he has taught the parrot to say hello. He does not understand how he learned to say good-night, Dew Drop.

XXX.

Lost—Dad's mustache.

Ed. Schwab went for berries Thursday and returned with pails filled.

Wm. McVane finished haying last week, assisted by Messrs. Schwab, Jones and Krape.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McVane visited Robt. Graham and family at Sinnamahoning Sunday.

Mr. J. M. Olsen is spending a few days in this place, a guest of his daughter, Mrs. E. D. Krape and family. Mr. Olsen is conducting a green store in Maderia, with good success.

E. F. Comley, who has been working at Portland Mills for some time, spent Sunday in this place with his family returning Monday to Harrison Valley.

The Owl Club held their weekly meeting Thursday evening with a full attendance. Tony Cromwell was toast-master and Orlo Barger, master of ceremonies.

E. D. Krape entertained quite a number of young folks from the Brick Works with some of Edison's latest editions on his phonograph, Thursday evening, and report having a fine collection of music.

It is rumored that "Dad" McCann gave strict orders to mine foreman Montgomery that he will only fire with Peacock coal at the brick works. This decision is evidentiy caused by the loss of his fine mustache.

Sunday while returning home from the Clam-bake at Pump Station, Harry Moore had the scare of his life. While passing through Schwab's field he was surprised to see an angry bull coming at him, and he took to the woods, with the animal a close second. He gained the fence just six inches ahead and climbed a tree, where he was found by the rest of the boys, who were attracted by his cries for help.

The Cameron team defeated the strong "Co. M" team of Emporium Sunday at Riverside Park with the score 9—6. The work of the Cameron battery was fine, and while quite a number of errors were made, by some of the rest of the boys, they redeemed themselves with the stick. Score by innings:

Cameron: 0-0-1-1-0-0-4-3—9.

Co. M.: 1-2-0-0-0-3-0—6.

The game was called at the end of the eighth inning, Cameron having one on bases with one out, so that the visiting team could catch the train. It is reported a game has been booked with Driftwood for Sunday.

The Clam-bake held at the pump-station Saturday night by the "Owl Club" was enjoyed by all. Montgomery says he never ate clams before that suited him as well as those prepared by Chef Fox. After the feed they were entertained by a six round bout between two of the members, which was decided by referee Stuart, a draw.

S. A. Krape, of Centre Hall, who has been visiting his son, E. D. Krape and family, the last few days, left for Lorain, O., Wednesday morning.

Ed. Schwab and lady friend had a very narrow escape while returning from the "Ciracus" Tuesday evening, in the shadow of the pines near the devil's elbow. What was the trouble?

The Cold Spring is evidently proving to be a very attractive place for young folks. Boys, what is the attraction?

Mr. and Mrs. D. Sullivan, Sr., returned from Cleveland, Tuesday night after attending the funeral of the latter's mother.

Quite a number of the townfolks attended the circus at Emporium Tuesday and all report a good time, both flyers stopping here to accomodate the passengers.

LOUISE.

STERLING RUN.

Ed. Berry and family, of Mich., are the guests of the former's parents, Wm. Berry and wife. Ed. has not been home for years and his many friends were glad to see him.

The W. C. T. U. picnic held at Beechwood under the direction of Mrs. C. R. Morrison was a grand success. In all, about one hundred and fifty people attended. We noticed several old friends from St. Marys, Howard Siding and Emporium. The committee appointed to fix up the grove did the work in an excellent manner. The good time enjoyed by all present was due largely to the services of the ladies in charge of the refreshments and to the young lady waiters. A fine dinner was served at twelve o'clock followed by a short literary program. This was truly a temperance picnic and an event to be remembered by young and old.

Mrs. Forest Pye and children, of Emporium, spent the week with her mother, Mrs. C. R. Morrison.

Wm. and Corinne Ferguson, of Emporium, spent Sunday in Beechwood.

BEARS ARE PLENTIFUL.

Indications That Bear Hunters Will Reap a Rich Harvest.

The summer indications in the back woods section of Clinton and neighboring counties assure a larger number of black bears than ever before. The large sections of wild lands that are now under the care of the State forestry department and are consequently growing up into a thick second growth of trees and shrubs afford a cover for the black bear as well as a source of food. Last winter there was the finest bear hunting in the history of the backwoods of Pennsylvania and the proability is that it will be much more interesting and much better during the open term of the coming season.

Jeff Shuman, a ginseng hunter in McHenry township, Lycoming county, saw an old bear and a pair of cubs a few miles west of Cammal the other day and the animals were so thoroughly imbued with the idea that they were monarchs of all they surveyed that they made no effort to "get away" when Shuman appeared. The State foresters and all others who spend time in the woods report a condition of plentifulness on the black bear question. The prolific growth of berries and nuts in the Pennsylvania woods tends to attract the bears, whereas the great runways of unbroken wild lands hnndreds of miles in extent over Lycoming, Potter, Clinton, Cameron and Elk counties give them a wide range of territory over which to roam.

The farmer and sheep raisers are not overly delighted with the out-look of having more black bears, for already the losses of animals by reason of the thefts of bears is a large one each year. One man on the Sinnamahoning last fall lost 17 sheep that were carried away by a colony of black bears within the five weeks they were grazing on the wild lands.
